

THE INSTITUTE OF AFRICAN STUDIES PRESENTS

"Healthcare in Exile: ANC Health Policy and Health Care Provision in MK Camps, 1960 to 1990"

WITH

Melissa Armstrong, PhD. candidate (History)
Carleton University

Wednesday, November 13, 1:00- 2:30 pm
433 Paterson Hall, Carleton University

In this seminar, Melissa Armstrong discusses her current research on the history of health in the camps of the military wing of the African National Congress (ANC), Umkhonto weSizwe (MK), during the South African liberation struggle. After establishing some of the context for health and health infrastructure while in exile, Melissa argues that the implementation of health care runs parallel to the ANC's broader political, economic and social realities.

This is part of the African Studies Brownbag Seminar Series (<http://www.carleton.ca/africanstudies/>)
