WITH

Monica Patterson, Concordia University

Wednesday, 7 March 2012, 1:00-2:30 pm
436 Paterson Hall, Carleton University

Monica Patterson (Ph.D., Anthropology and History, University of Michigan) is a postdoctoral fellow at the Centre for Ethnographic Research and Exhibition in the Aftermath of Violence (CEREV) in the Department of History at Concordia University. She is coeditor and contributing author of Curating Difficult Knowledge: Violent Pasts in Public Places (Palgrave, 2011) and Anthrohistory: Unsettling Knowledge, Questioning Discipline (University of Michigan Press, 2011).

Analyzing children as both icons and agents in the anti-apartheid struggle, this talk will explore visual culture as a source in historical, discursive, and ethnographic terms, while presenting some of the challenges of doing children's history.
