

Psychology (Clinical)

Academic Rank:

Assistant Professor (tenure track). Highly qualified candidates will be considered at higher rank.

Starting Salary: $59,200 and up (Assistant Professor). The University provides generous benefits.

Deadline:

Application review process starts December 7, 2015. Applications will be accepted until the position is filled; priority will be given to those submitted by the deadline.

Starting Date: July 1, 2016

Institutional Requirements:

To be considered for appointment, the candidate must wholeheartedly endorse the Mission Statement and the Statement of Faith of the University (see <http://www.kingsu.ca/about-us/>). The successful candidate must have graduate level course work in areas of teaching. A Ph.D. is required for tenure-track appointment. A Master's degree with considerable experience could be considered.

Teaching Load: Six term courses or equivalent per year.

Research Duties:

All tenure-track faculty members are expected to engage in scholarly activity (some combination of discovery/integration/application/pedagogy/engagement) and to publish results. In the case of a clinical psychology appointment, part-time active clinical practice, and publishable reflections on that practice, may be considered as significantly contributing towards this scholarly requirement.

Particulars of the Position:

The successful candidate must be able to teach courses in Introductory Psychology, Clinical Psychology, Counseling, and Abnormal Psychology. Additional course assignments could include one or more of Testing & Assessment, Community Psychology, Health Psychology, or Developmental Psychology. Supervision of research projects for students in their senior undergraduate years is expected. Clinical experience is a highly desirable asset. The Psychology Department at King's co-operates in a broad multi-disciplinary initiative to serve organizations, agencies, and communities beyond the campus through provision of community engaged research; preference will be given to candidates with experience in, or demonstrating capacity for, community engaged research. The successful candidate will contribute to a growing and dynamic four-year B.A. with a psychology major and a three-year B.A. with a psychology concentration in which psychology is integrated in a liberal arts context (<http://www.kingsu.ca/programs/majors/psychology>). Experience and/or interest in team-teaching and interdisciplinary teaching or research is welcome. The successful candidate should be able to articulate, develop, and model a Christian approach to psychology in teaching, clinical practice, and research, recognizing how faith shapes the theory, methods, and practice of the discipline.

The King's University is a Christian liberal arts university offering three and four-year Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Science degrees, a Bachelor of Commerce, a Bachelor of Music, and a two-year after-degree Bachelor of Education accredited by the province of Alberta. The University is a member of Universities Canada and of the Council for Christian Colleges and Universities. Faculty members at The King's University are eligible for and are currently receiving NSERC and SSHRC funding.

Qualified candidates should send a letter of application, curriculum vitae, transcripts and three letters of reference to:
