

Vladimir Masloboev - Doctor of Sciences (Engineering), Professor

Vladimir Masloboev was born 29.05.1949 in Arkhangelsk city, Russia.

After graduation from Moscow Institute for Fine Chemical Technology named M.V.

Lomonosov in 1972 as engineer-technologist in the field of materials for electronic engineering he started his scientific career at Kola Science Center of Russian Academy of Sciences in Apatity town, Murmansk region, Russia.

Present positions:

- Vice-president of Kola Science Centre, Russian Academy of Sciences on Research, Development and Innovation;
- Director of Institute for Industrial Ecology Problems in the North;
- Professor of the Thermal Physics Department. The Kola Branch of Petrozavodsk State University;
- Professor of the Geoecology Department. Murmansk State Technical University.

Key qualifications:

- Chemistry and Technology of the Kola Peninsula's Mineral Raw Materials Processing;
- Technological Aspects of Environment's Protection;
- Environment Impact Assessment (EIA) for Mining, Energy- and Oil & Gas Industries;
- Regional, National and International Research Projects, their Management, Development and Implementation;
- Expert in the International Cooperation for Research and Development, especially in the Environment Protection Areas.

Vladimir Masloboev published over 500 scientific works included 5 monographies and 40 patents for inventions.

E-mail: masloboev@ksc.ru , masloboev@mail.ru

Phone: +7 81555 61093, mobil +7 911 3030870