

New Centre for Holocaust Education and Scholarship

In honour of Holocaust Education Month, please join us for a screening of the new documentary Shores of Light.

Little has been told about the thousands of Holocaust survivors who arrived in Southern Italy after WW2. The local population received them with open arms and allowed them to rebuild their lives under the warm Mediterranean sun. They recovered, married, and had hundreds of children, even as they prepared to immigrate to Palestine. Now, almost seven decades later, three women born in Santa Maria di Leuca return to Italy to see if they can find a trace of their parents' brief stay there. Enchanted by the place and enamoured by the people, these women cast a light on a previously little-known reality: that of life immediately after the war. The film blends rare archival footage and testimonies into a poignant story about the hope that shone from the coastline along Italy's "boot". (56 minutes, Hebrew and Italian, Hebrew and English subtitles)

ABOUT CHES: The mission of the new Centre for Holocaust Education and Scholarship (CHES) to be established at the Max and Tessie Zelikovitz Centre for Jewish Studies is to offer educational programs and activities in order to promote a deeper understanding of the history and legacy of the Holocaust. Bringing together academics, educators, survivors, students, and community members CHES will offer year round programming whose objectives will include combatting prejudice and racism; and promoting respect for diversity, social justice and human rights.

CHES is pleased to partner with the Institute of European, Russian and Eurasian Studies at Carleton University for this event.
