COURSE DESCRIPTION

This course will examine the concept of the rule of law, which is often expressed in the adage, no person is above the law, but is really a concept that defies definition. We will look at the concept through an analysis of the requirements in a political/legal system to operate by rule of law and will apply this analysis to an actual situation, policing scandals in Canada. Since the meaning of the term, rule of law, is uncertain and often criticized, we will approach the concept through various arguments about its nature, location in state theory, and value.

1. To learn the content of the course.
2. To develop the skills you will need in future courses:
  - a) to read and follow and argument
  - b) to write for a specific purpose, eg. an analysis
  - c) to research online and in the library
  - d) to speak in class by debating and presenting
  - e) to work in groups but to submit individual work for each assignment
