COURSE DESCRIPTION

The Constitution may be the “supreme law of the land” but this does not mean it is without controversy. The courts are continually interpreting and applying new meanings to the constitution as society evolves. The Charter of Rights and Freedoms is part of the Constitution and while being a relatively new addition, has changed the legal landscape in Canada.

This course will introduce students to the Constitution, specifically the Charter, and examine the relationship between the Citizen and the State, including how this relationship has changed since the introduction of the Charter. Case studies will provide recent examples of citizens challenging the state to enforce their rights.

Challenging government power and decisions is an important part of any democracy and this course will also introduce the concept of Judicial Review and outline how a person can challenge a decision made by a government official.

CLASS FORMAT

Classes will consist mainly of lectures, although given the contentious nature of the material, questions and class discussion are welcome and encouraged. Students are expected to attend class regularly and to answer questions. Students must read the materials assigned before the relevant class. Certain classes may include guest lecturers or discussions led by the teaching assistant.

EVALUATION (All components must be completed in order to receive a passing grade)

10% - Attendance

It is the student's responsibility to personally sign class attendance sheets and to be present throughout the entire class – both before and after the mid-class break.

35% - Written Assignment – due at beginning of class on October 22, 2013.

The Charter of Rights and Freedoms grants many rights to Canadians. However, state actors have and do infringe on these rights, forcing individuals to assert and fight for their Charter rights in court.

Find one news article published in either 2012 or 2013 (ie. An article that has been published in a newspaper, news magazine, or a reputable online news website) where a Canadian individual or group believes their Charter rights have been infringed. Identify the Charter right being asserted and discuss what legal challenges the person faces in having their right recognized by a Canadian court.

Note: the person or group who is the subject of the article must NOT have already received a decision on the issue by a court.

The assignment should reflect original analysis and thought. Important qualities that should be considered include: good organization and use of sources, comprehensive, up-to-date treatment of the subject matter, originality (i.e., no quoting or paraphrasing of secondary sources without explicit acknowledgment), accuracy (in grammar, spelling, and law), conciseness, reasoned analysis (discussion of pros and cons, comparisons, assessments, concrete examples, logical arguments, etc., rather than pure description or pure subjective opinion), and clarity, gender-appropriate language (e.g., avoiding use of male gender where both genders are relevant).

At least one (1) and no more than two (2) secondary sources must be consulted. Neither of these secondary sources may be the course materials or lectures, including the required and recommended texts by David W. Elliott. Secondary sources should be cited according to the Department of Law's Legal Style Sheet - http://www1.carleton.ca/law/ccms/wp-content/ccms-files/legal_style_sheet.pdf

Each assignment must be no longer than three (3) pages in length, double-spaced, typed in 12-point Times New Roman font, with one (1) inch margins. Assignments that do not meet these guidelines will not be marked. Marks will be deducted for spelling and grammar errors. A copy of the news article must be included with the submitted assignment.

Late assignments: Assignments not submitted on the assigned due date will be assigned a 5% per day penalty for no more than seven (7) calendar days. Assignments will no longer be accepted after seven (7) calendar days.

Extensions will be only given out in extreme circumstances, such as severe illness of the student or death of a family member, and only with proper documentation. You must apply for an extension prior to the due date for the assignment. Appropriate documentation will be required to accompany requests for extensions. Computer failure, conflicts with work schedule or similar problems are not a valid excuse for failure to submit an assignment on time. Students submitting late assignments must submit a hard copy of the assignment to the Department of Law drop box and must email the instructor notifying him that the assignment has been left in the drop box.

Please Note: For the purposes of this assignment, the news article chosen can not be about: Stacy Bonds, Emil Cohen, G20 protests or arrests, Occupy "Wall Street" or another city, Polygamy in British Columbia, Student housing or Airport Security, as these will be discussed in Class as Case Studies.

All assignments may be compared with other submissions in this course. Those suspected of plagiarism, without exception, will be referred to the Office of the Dean. Further if 'off topic' work is submitted, other instructors may be consulted to confirm that the assignment is not being 're-used' which is strictly prohibited.

Note: There will be no make-up assignments or "grade-booster" assignments under any circumstances

55% - Final Examination

December 2013

Multiple-choice and short answer question(s)

To be eligible for a passing grade, students must complete all components of the evaluation scheme.
