DESCRIPTION OF THE COURSE

Students who have taken my section of Introduction to Criminal Law, Laws 2004, know already that I am a criminal defense lawyer who teaches from a practical perspective, as if it were a law school course. I consider this course, which I am teaching for the fifth time, to be an extension of the introductory criminal law course. The focus will continue to be on jurisprudence and legal principles, i.e., the tools that lawyers use when defending or prosecuting young persons accused of crime, and the tools available to Judges who deal with youths. I will rely heavily on guest lecturers to help put the reading materials into real-life context.

Because the YCJA is such a new piece of legislation that is still in the early stages of being interpreted by the courts (and reacted to by politicians), the recommended textbooks are just a starting point for readings. To be prepared for class (and exams), you will need to read various cases from the Supreme Court of Canada as well as provincial appellate courts, likely some of which have not yet been decided. I will direct you throughout the term to various recent decisions. In addition, I will rely on information available on the internet, including background papers at the Department of Justice (Canada) website, and statistics available there or at the Statistics Canada website.

We will begin the course with a brief review of criminal procedure generally: it is necessary to understand the general law before examining how the law is different for youths. We will then review the history of the Youth Criminal Justice Act, including its antecedents such as the Young Offenders Act and the Juvenile Delinquents Act. Reviewing the history of the law will involve comparing the changing philosophy with respect to youth crime. We will also rely on statistical information in order to appreciate the true magnitude of youth crime, as well as to observe the practical impact of the YCJA.

The bulk of the course will be taken up with procedures and considerations that relate specifically to youths, particularly sentencing.

My objective is that students finish the course with a practical knowledge of the Canadian criminal justice system as it relates to youths, and that students be capable of critically analyzing media reports on youth crime, including its “prevalence” and the notion that young people are dealt with too leniently. I do not expect students to agree with me on all points. Exams will be structured so that you will be tested on your knowledge of facts relating to youth criminal justice in Canada, and not on your knowledge of my opinions.

One final note regarding CUTV courses. It is wonderful that university courses can be provided to students other than via the traditional classroom lecture. This enables students who, because of distance, employment, family responsibilities or disability to take courses that would otherwise be inaccessible to them. The downside, though, is that the ability to see the lectures any time at one’s convenience causes many students to fall behind, saving up the lectures until just before the exam and then cramming them in during a marathon session. While this is better than nothing, I strongly discourage this strategy in this or any other course. Do your best to keep up with the lectures weekly, and avoid the temptation to fall behind. By all means, come to class whenever you like, whichever section of the course you are in.

I hope that you enjoy the course, and I look forward to hearing from you as we go along. Course-content-related questions sent to me by e-mail may be answered to the class as a whole so that all students have the same information.
