GLOBAL JUSTICE THEORY

The fourth year seminar in global justice theory will focus in the winter term 2010 on challenges to and the promises of international law and ‘global governance’ in the aftermath of the post Cold War era and humanitarian intervention, on the one hand, and the ‘global war on terror’, on the other.

What is and what should the role of international law be today? Are human rights threatened by both humanitarian intervention and the ‘war on terror’?

Must states obey international law?

Why are we – human rights and global justice ‘types’ – so attached to international law?

Is international law constraining state violence or is it spreading it today?

Is there a meaningful distinction to be made between international law and the international rule of law?

How might we reconceptualize and reform international law and global governance?

What role do or should struggles in ‘global civil society’ play in relation to international law and global justice?

READINGS:

Almost all of the required readings are on Web CT under LAWS4105 Winter 2010.

Readings that are not on Web CT are either provided with an internet address or will be available in class as photocopies that students can share (indicated in the syllabus with ‘pc’ after the citation).

If you wish to purchase books, I suggest the following, all of which we will use:

Habermas, Jürgen. 2001. The Divided West, ed. and trans. Max Pensky. Cambridge, MA.: The MIT Press. An important book to current debates over international law by one of the leading philosophers of the 20th and 21st centuries.

Falk, Richard. 2009. Achieving Human Rights. New York: Routledge. An important political and legal discussion of international law and human rights today. If you are uninitiated in international law, this is an especially helpful book. Yet, it is sophisticated, not simplistic. Falk is one of the leading international law scholars who is now the UN Special Rapporteur for Human Rights in the Palestinian Occupied Territories.

Mamdami, Mahmood. 2009. Saviors and Survivors: Darfur, Politics, and the War on Terror. New York: Pantheon. Mamdami's critique of the Save Darfur movement may interest you. Mamdami is highly regarded as an expert on issues of "humanitarian intervention" and civil war.

Where to buy? Use your own judgment but consider supporting a local bookstore. I recommend Octopus Books on 3d Avenue in the Glebe.

EVALUATION:

Evaluation will be based on the following combination of seminar participation and written work.

1. A participation mark of 20% based on discussion leadership and weekly participation. The participation mark is a composite mark, evaluating your performance over the entire term and with respect both to discussion leadership and weekly participation. You are expected to participate on the basis of having read and reflected seriously on the literature and issues each week. Please come to seminar with a question, an objection, or other issue you would like to discuss and be prepared to discuss it with the seminar.

Please read the memo on discussion leadership posted on Web CT for important information on what I expect of you as a discussion leader.

2. At least 3 very short essays over the course of the term 3 (min) to 5 (max) pages (double-spaced) 20%. The short essays may generally be written for any of the weeks 2 through 10. However, you may not write a short essay for a class when you are a discussion leader. There is one exception to this rule: Everyone must write a short essay for week 9 even if you lead the discussion that week. The short essay is due in the class for which it is submitted. No late essays will be accepted. You may submit your essay via email prior to class if (and only if) you will miss class that day.

The short essays should critically evaluate some aspect of the literature for the relevant week and raise at least one question for discussion in class. Your evaluation may be tentative but you must go beyond mere description or summary of the literature. The paper and question(s) should be conceptual in nature. The short essays will be marked on the basis of the thoughtfulness of the issue chosen for consideration, the evaluation provided and the question posed. While short essays need not be as formal as a research essay or the final exam, writing style, grammar etc. will count and citations are necessary.

I will return your marked essays in class within two weeks of their submission.

3. Take home examination or research essay 60%. Due April 9 before 4pm

The take home examination will be distributed in the 12th class meeting. It is due on April 9 before 4pm. Late exams will result in failure in the course in the absence of a medical excuse that I judge to be adequate. You may submit your exam as an email attachment so long as: (1) you get it to me before 4pm on the due date, and (2) you take the responsibility for any technological failures. In other words, late exam answers will not be accepted. The take home examination will pose a question and ask you to integrate and assess the literature we have read and discussed this term. You will not be required to do outside research for the examination. But, you will be expected to have mastered a wide swath of the literature. The exam answer should be approximately 3750 words (about 15 pp double spaced). It may be no longer than 4500 words (about 18 pp double spaced).

You may choose to do a research essay instead of the take home examination. However, you need to clear the subject with me by March 19 if you choose this option. The research essay must draw on an area of research related to the course and either have a conceptual/theoretical and empirical importance in relation to the 'global war on terror' or 'humanitarian intervention' and international law or be a primarily theoretical/conceptual inquiry. You will be required to do research beyond the readings in the course. The essay must be original to this course. The research essay should be about 4500 words (about 18 pp. double spaced) and no more than 5500 words (about 22 pages double-spaced) not including notes. It is due April 9 before 4pm. Late essays will result in failure in the course in the absence of a medical excuse that I judge to be adequate.

SEMINAR: This is a fourth year seminar. As a seminar, there will be virtually no lecture component. I view it as a 'reading course' or 'reading seminar' the success of which is dependent on you, each student, as well as upon me. I will attempt to guide the discussion where I think it needs guidance. I will also set the context for debates, where necessary. And, I will debate with you and sometimes (be prepared) suggest you need to rethink matters, or, even, that I think you are wrong. But, this is a completely collective project for which we are all responsible and should be embraced as such by each of you.

You absolutely must read everything, closely, for the seminar, before the seminar. The success of a seminar depends on informed, lively and critical student participation. Regular attendance in seminar is necessary, but not sufficient, to constitute participation. The participation mark evaluates student discussion leadership, weekly participation in discussions and any other exercises, which may include short written summaries (1-2 pages) of the weekly readings if I detect that you are not engaging with the literature seriously or consistently. The foundation for participation is close study of the readings before the class in which they are assigned. This requires more than skimming a text. It requires of most scholars at least one careful reading, a written summary of the material, a set of questions or criticisms, and a review before class.

GENERAL RULES:

Failure to complete any aspect of the requirements may result in failure in the course.

Plagiarism will not be tolerated. Please refer to the Departmental Course-Related Policy and Procedure Statement (<http://www.carleton.ca/law/policy.htm>). Plagiarism means passing off as one's own ideas or product the work of another, without giving credit to the source. My position is that students who plagiarize should be expelled from university and I will work toward that end should I find you have plagiarized.

NOTE ON ACADEMIC ACCOMMODATIONS:

Students with disabilities needing academic accommodations in this course are required to contact a coordinator at the Paul Menton Centre to complete the necessary letters of accommodation. The student must then make an appointment to discuss their needs with the instructor at least two weeks prior to the first class or ITV test. This is to ensure sufficient time is available to make the necessary accommodation arrangement. Please note the deadline for submitting completed forms to the PMC for formally scheduled exam accommodations is November 9th 2007. With regard to accommodations for religious obligations and pregnancy, please see <http://www.carleton.ca/law/accommodations.htm> .
