Religious obligation: write to me with any requests for academic accommodation during the first two weeks of class, or as soon as possible after the need for accommodation is known to exist. For more details visit the Equity Services website: <http://www2.carleton.ca/equity/>

Academic Accommodations for Students with Disabilities: The Paul Menton Centre for Students with Disabilities (PMC) provides services to students with Learning Disabilities (LD), psychiatric/mental health disabilities, Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD), Autism Spectrum Disorders (ASD), chronic medical conditions, and impairments in mobility, hearing, and vision. If you have a disability requiring academic accommodations in this course, please contact PMC at 613-520-6608 or pmc@carleton.ca for a formal evaluation. If you are already registered with the PMC, contact your PMC coordinator to send me your Letter of Accommodation at the beginning of the term, and no later than two weeks before the first in-class scheduled test or exam requiring accommodation (if applicable). After requesting accommodation from PMC, meet with me to ensure accommodation arrangements are made. Please consult the PMC website for the deadline to request accommodations for the formally-scheduled exam (if applicable) at <http://www2.carleton.ca/pmc/new-and-current-students/dates-and-deadlines/>

You can visit the Equity Services website to view the policies and to obtain more detailed information on academic accommodation at <http://www2.carleton.ca/equity/>

COURSE DESCRIPTION

The subject of this course is social transformation and criminal justice reform. The scope of the course will deal with the theoretical and practical reasons for the use of criminal law as an instrument of social control. Students will engage in critical analysis of specific reform initiatives and processes. We will also consider alternate responses to social problems.

Often the subject matter of a myriad of disciplines such as criminology, law, public administration, social work, political science, and public administration, our examination of criminal justice reform will utilize a critical socio-legal perspective to interrogate criminal justice reforms in Canada and other jurisdictions. Some of the questions that this course will entertain are:

- What is criminal justice reform?
- What are the goals of criminal justice reform?
- What motivates criminal justice reform?
- How is criminal justice reform mediated through individuals, institutions, interest groups, and ideas?
- How is criminal justice reform implicated in social control?

Given that this course is a seminar, students will play a vital role in their own learning and the learning of their colleagues. Each student bears both a responsibility and an obligation to themselves and their colleagues.

The objectives of this course are:

- An appreciation of the historical and contemporary debates and challenges relating to criminal justice reform;
- To familiarize students with the criminal justice reforms including the rationales and ideological bases that have been deployed in support of criminal justice reform; and
- To develop the capacity to conduct a critical analysis of criminal justice reform.

REQUIRED TEXTBOOKS AND READINGS

This course does not have a required text. It will be taught using documents that reside in the public domain (e.g. legislation, legal decisions, government reports, non-governmental reports, and documents available to Carleton Students through the university library and its services) which will be made available through WebCT and/or the library reserves. The Instructor will also provide materials developed specifically for this course.

ACADEMIC OFFENCES

Students are deemed to be both aware of the regulations detailed in the Carleton Undergraduate Calendar regarding academic offences. University rules regarding registration, withdrawal, appealing marks, and most anything else you might need to know can be found on the university's website, here: <http://www.carleton.ca/cu0708uc/regulations/acadregsuniv.html>

The University Senate defines plagiarism as "presenting, whether intentionally or not, the ideas, expression of ideas or work of others as one's own." This can include:

- reproducing or paraphrasing portions of someone else's published or unpublished material, regardless of the source, and presenting these as one's own without proper citation or reference to the original source;
- submitting a take-home examination, essay, laboratory report or other assignment written, in whole or in part, by someone else;
- using ideas or direct, verbatim quotations, or paraphrased material, concepts, or ideas without appropriate acknowledgment in any academic assignment;
- using another's data or research findings;
- failing to acknowledge sources through the use of proper citations when using another's works and/or failing to use quotation marks;
- handing in "substantially the same piece of work for academic credit more than once without prior written permission of the course instructor in which the submission occurs."

Plagiarism is a serious offence which cannot be resolved directly with the course's instructor. The Associate Dean of the Faculty conducts a rigorous investigation, including an interview with the student, when an instructor suspects a piece of work has been plagiarized. Penalties are not trivial. They can include a final grade of "F" for the course.

Plagiarism is the passing off of someone else's work as your own and is a serious academic offence. For the details of what constitutes plagiarism, the potential penalties and the procedures refer to the section on Instructional Offences in the Undergraduate Calendar.

A student found to have plagiarized an assignment may be subject to one of several penalties including: expulsion; suspension from all studies at Carleton; suspension from full-time studies; and/or a reprimand; a refusal of permission to continue or to register in a specific degree program; academic probation; award of an FNS, Fail, or an ABS.

All allegations of plagiarism are reported to the faculty of Dean of FASS and Management. Documentation is prepared by instructors and/or departmental chairs. The Dean writes to the student and the University Ombudsperson about the alleged plagiarism. The Dean reviews the allegation. If it is not resolved at this level then it is referred to a tribunal appointed by the Senate.

Course Rules and Regulations

The following rules and regulations specifically apply to this course. If you have any questions please discuss with your professor/instructor as soon as possible. The onus is on each student to ensure they understand and comply with all of the relevant rules and regulations.

Expectations

- Students are deemed to have read and understood the relevant University rules and regulations that pertain to them.
- Students are expected to 'manage' their obligations to this course. Each and every student has a unique set of circumstances that can influence their performance in this course. Each student is responsible for all of the obligations, choices and decisions in their lives outside of the course that may influence their performance.
- Plagiarism is a serious matter and will be dealt with accordingly. The Carleton University Academic Calendar states that: "Academic fraud is an act by a student, which may result in a false academic evaluation of that student or of another student". Please read the relevant sections concerning academic fraud in the Undergraduate Calendar. All material quoted or paraphrased from any source must be properly credited. The instructor also reserves the right to orally examine any student regarding work they submit in this course.
- To pass this course, you must complete all elements of the evaluation scheme. Failure to complete all elements of the evaluation scheme will result in an incomplete (which will convert into an F).
- This course will provide students with an intellectually challenging yet safe learning environment. Information will be presented in a manner that is accessible. Students will be assessed in a manner that is reasonable and fair.
- It is recognized that students pay a lot of money for the opportunity to learn, your grade will be based on your ability to demonstrate what you have learned through the assignments rather than your cancelled check or registrar's receipt.
- Students are expected to be fully engaged and active participants in their education. Put another way, it is expected that students will be active rather than passive learners. The role of the instructor is to 'facilitate' active learning, those expecting to learn via a passive method will find this course.
- The choice to attend class belongs to each student. The consequences of non-attendance are also borne by each student.
- Students are expected to engage in class discussions of the topics and themes that form the basis of this course.
Warning: A student's failure to adequately plan does not constitute an emergency or extenuating circumstance in the Instructor's world that will exonerate, alleviate or exempt you from any of the requirements or demands of this course.

Course Notes

- Each student is responsible for their own course notes. My lectures are not posted on any website, nor are they made available through the library reserve. If you are unable to attend a lecture you will need to obtain notes from one of your classmates.
- Students are encouraged to engage in note-taking from the assigned readings as well as at lectures.
- Any Powerpoint slides I will show in class are only a skeleton to help guide lectures. Students are expected to put the 'flesh' onto this skeleton in the form of their notes in class and from the assigned readings.

E-mail / Internet / Computer Usage

- Please note that you will be able to link your CONNECT (MyCarleton) account to other non-CONNECT accounts and receive emails from us. However, for us to respond to your emails, we need to see your full name, CU ID, and the email must be written from your valid CONNECT address. Therefore, it would be easier to respond to your inquiries if you would send all email from your connect account. If you do not have or have yet to activate this account, you may wish to do so by visiting <https://portal.carleton.ca/>
- I will be using the e-mail system on My Carleton to send out information. Please ensure that this address is set to forward to the e-mail address you use if the Carleton address is not your primary e-mail address.
- E-mails to the class will be sent out through the university's computing system. If you are using an e-mail address other than the one provided by the university, please ensure that your university e-mail account is active and set to forward messages to your other e-mail account(s). If this is not done you will not be able to receive important e-mail messages sent to the class.
- The Internet may be used as a research tool to locate academic material. Internet materials are not to be used in this course unless they comport with the academic standards for scholarly publications.
- Computer problems are not an acceptable excuse for an extension. Students are expected to ensure their work is saved and backed-up, either on a diskette, CD, memory stick, e-mailing it to yourself or as a printed copy.

Getting Help

- The instructor will make himself reasonably accessible for the duration of the course. You have my phone number. You have my e-mail (which goes to both my Mac account and my Blackberry). I have office hours before class or by appointment.
- Feel free to use any of these means to contact me, however, keep in mind that I also have many other things I need to get done. So don't wait until the very last moment to seek clarification or help.
- If you have questions or concerns relating to the material in the course feel free to come see during my office hours or to contact me to schedule an appointment. If you prefer e-mail that's fine with me.
- With respect to using e-mail to contact me, however, you should allow 48 hours for a response. If you have not received a response within this time, try sending another e-mail, come see me during my office hours or during class. You can also leaving a note in my departmental mailbox.

In-Class Behaviour

- People should not be talking in class or conducting themselves in a manner that is disturbing or disruptive to others. Students are expected to be respectful when discussing controversial topics.
- If your conduct is disturbing or disruptive, you will be asked to leave the class.
- Your cell phone, blackberry and/or pager should either be turned off or set to vibrate mode.
- Laptop computers are permitted in class for the specific purpose of note-taking. If you wish to use your computer to surf the Internet, Facebook, IM message, etc., please do so somewhere other than lectures.

Extensions and Deferrals

- Extensions are extremely rare occurrences and will only be granted in cases of exceptional circumstances.
- When requesting an extension students must tender all work completed on the assignment to that date (e.g. drafts, notes, etc.).
- Students must produce proper documentation for consideration (e.g. medical certificate; death certificate; etc.).

- The decision to grant an extension is solely the discretion of the Instructor. A physician's medical opinion does not entitle a student to an automatic extension.
- Deferrals are the purview of the Registrar's Office. Should you require an extension please contact the Registrar's Office directly.

EVALUATION ELEMENTS AND DUE DATES

The dates for the assignment, paper and final are indicated below. If you are unable to write the examination or turn in any of the assignments on the dates as scheduled below, it is strongly suggested you consider taking the course another time. Late penalty for all assignments in this course is 10% per day.

You must complete all of the assignments in order to obtain this course. Failure to complete all of the components for evaluation will result a failure of the course.

Assignment 1 (30%) - Due October 10, 2012 – This assignment will ascertain your understanding of the nuances of the definitions and concepts relating to criminal justice reform.

Assignment 2 (30%) - Due November 7, 2012 – You will be tasked with the design of a criminal justice reform with specific elements to define and work through according to a framework which will be elaborated in class and through course materials.

Final Exam (40%) – Take-Home Final Examination – Due December 19, 2012. Late examinations will not be accepted. This open-book and requires that you cite your work as you would for a paper in this course. All written work on the take-home is expected to be that of the individual student. Group preparation is acceptable, but all answers must be written by the individual acting alone. The Take-Home Exam will be comprised of a total of three questions: two short questions, each worth 25%; and one essay worth 50%.

Additional details for each of the assignments and the take-home final examination will be elaborated upon in class and in handouts.

FINAL GRADES

Final grades are subject to the Dean's approval. Supplemental and Grade-raising exams are no longer available.

GUIDELINES FOR THE EVALUATION OF WORK
A+ A A-	Outstanding performance. Represents work of exceptional quality. Content, organization and style all at a high comprehension of subject and use of existing research and literature where appropriate.
