Academic Accommodations:

You may need special arrangements to meet your academic obligations during the term. For an accommodation request the processes are as follows:

Pregnancy obligation: write to me with any requests for academic accommodation during the first two weeks of class, or as soon as possible after the need for accommodation is known to exist. For more details visit the Equity Services website: <http://carleton.ca/equity/>

Religious obligation: write to me with any requests for academic accommodation during the first two weeks of class, or as soon as possible after the need for accommodation is known to exist. For more details visit the Equity Services website: <http://carleton.ca/equity/>

Academic Accommodations for Students with Disabilities: The Paul Menton Centre for Students with Disabilities (PMC) provides services to students with Learning Disabilities (LD), psychiatric/mental health disabilities, Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD), Autism Spectrum Disorders (ASD), chronic medical conditions, and impairments in mobility, hearing, and vision. If you have a disability requiring academic accommodations in this course, please contact PMC at 613-520-6608 or pmc@carleton.ca for a formal evaluation. If you are already registered with the PMC, contact your PMC coordinator to send me your Letter of Accommodation at the beginning of the term, and no later than two weeks before the first in-class scheduled test or exam requiring accommodation (if applicable). After requesting accommodation from PMC, meet with me to ensure accommodation arrangements are made. Please consult the PMC website for the deadline to request accommodations for the formally-scheduled exam (if applicable) at <http://carleton.ca/pmc/students/dates-and-deadlines/>

You can visit the Equity Services website to view the policies and to obtain more detailed information on academic accommodation at <http://carleton.ca/equity/>

Plagiarism

Plagiarism is presenting, whether intentional or not, the ideas, expression of ideas or work of others as one's own. Plagiarism includes reproducing or paraphrasing portions of someone else's published or unpublished material, regardless of the source, and presenting these as one's own without proper citation or reference to the original source. Examples of sources from which the ideas, expressions of ideas or works of others may be drawn from include but are not limited to: books, articles, papers, literary compositions and phrases, performance compositions, chemical compounds, art works, laboratory reports, research results, calculations and the results of calculations, diagrams, constructions, computer reports, computer code/software, and material on the Internet. Plagiarism is a serious offence.

Course Description

The laws governing resort to the use of force (ius ad bellum) and the conduct of hostilities (ius in bello) have a long pedigree, each having been central to the emergence of what we have come to know as public international law. In the Western philosophical, theological, and legal traditions the principles governing the laws of war can be traced to Greek and Roman thought, and the early Christian Church. This course traces the development of each of these branches of the laws of war, from antiquity, through the ostensible efforts to "humanize" warfare that dominated the Eurocentric development of the laws of war through the 19th and 20th centuries. Central to our considerations will be the persistent counterpoint running through this evolution; a counterpoint struck by the dark "underbelly" of humanitarian law: the constant presence of those excluded from law's reach, from the barbarians at the margins of the "universal" empires of Rome and the Holy Roman Empire, to the "terrorist" outlaws of the 21st century.

The course is arranged as a weekly seminar. Students will be assigned readings from the course reading-list to present in class. Presentations should be brief. Their purpose is to draw out the principle points and/or problems/themes arising from the readings, and to create a foundation for broader class discussion of the reading materials.

Please note that this course has an extensive reading list, and while I don't expect people will be able to read everything each week, you should make every effort to cover as much of the material as you can each week and to participate in weekly discussion. The final take-home exam will require you to display a firm grasp of the materials from across the course, so if you aren't doing the readings you will find the course very difficult to do well in.

Required Texts

This term we will be relying on an array of reading from various sources. All materials can be located through the library collection or over the Internet more generally.

Course Evaluation

Class Participation - 20%
Take-home Exam - 40% (3,500-4,000 words)
Term Paper - 40% (3,500-4,000 words)

Students will be required to submit a brief paper proposal in class in Week 7 (the class of October 21). The proposal should consist of a working title and roughly a half-page (1-2 paragraph) description of how you envisage the paper developing.

(All components must be completed in order to get a passing grade)

A Note on Resources

There are innumerable websites with a vast wealth of material that you could draw upon as background information and/or additional sources. Two of the most interesting and useful for our immediate purposes are:

The website of the International Committee of the Red Cross at <http://www.icrc.org/eng/index.jsp>. The legacy of Henri Dunant, the ICRC is a remarkable institution whose special neutral status has granted it unprecedented credibility and authority as an official exponent of the current status of the law of armed conflict. It has, in turn, gained a reputation as the principal frontline provider of services to those hors de combat in warzones internationally. If you want authoritative statements of the current status of the laws of armed conflict, this is an invaluable source of information. You should be particularly aware of the materials posted at http://www.icrc.org/customary-ihl/eng/docs/v1_cha. On this page are links to a series of brief, highly readable summaries of the current status of the laws of International Humanitarian Law as Customary International Law. Here you will find succinct formulations of such crucial concepts to the law of armed as “distinction”, “proportionality”, and “military necessity”, and much more as well. Much of what we will be reading this term is engaged directly with this orthodoxy, either arguing for its customary, universally binding character, or denying its continued relevance under conditions that render them no longer practicable or feasible (i.e. a post-Westphalian world order dominated by profound asymmetries of power and correspondingly disparate strategic approaches to conflict).

The Crimes of War Project, at <http://www.crimesofwar.org/>, that includes a glossary/dictionary of key concepts, as well as numerous brief articles on many facets of the law of armed conflict; an excellent resource.

In addition to these, JustWarTheory.com, <http://www.justwartheory.com/>, is a free, non-profit, critically annotated aid to philosophical studies of warfare. It is owned and maintained by Mark Rigstad, Associate Professor of Philosophy at Oakland University. His website is supported through the sale of JWT-shirts, and all profits go to UNICEF. While it may seem a bit content-intensive at first, Professor Rigstad has done an excellent job of assembling a wealth of material invaluable to the study of the law of armed conflict. Worth a look!
