

Trajectories of Integration: Migrants and Refugees in the Labour Market in Canada and the European Union

When: May 13th, 9:30AM -1:00PM

Where: Senate Room (608 Robertson Hall), Carleton University

The research workshop will focus on the integration issues facing migrants and refugees in Canada and in the countries of the European Union, with particular attention given to the pathways to enter the labour market.

Labour market integration is perceived as a most important measure of integration, leading to successful resettlement and positive long-term integration outcomes for individual migrants, their families, and also for the host country. Yet, these outcomes can vary quite dramatically from one EU member state to another and Canada.

In this context, some migrant groups may be perceived as being more privileged than other groups. The event will thus also explore integration issues of one such a seemingly privileged group in Canada, i.e. EU citizens.

9:30-11:15: Panel I

11:30-13:00: Panel II and Screening of the Research Documentary:
“Europe Outside Europe”

*Welcome remarks will be offered by Manfred Auster,
Delegation of the European Union to Canada*

Panelists:

Joan DeBardleben, Carleton University
Howard Duncan, Metropolis International
Sona Kalantaryan, European University Institute
Ümit Kiziltan, Immigration, Refugees and
Citizenship Canada
Oliver Schmidtke, University of Victoria
Agnieszka Weinar, Carleton University,
European University Institute
Elke Winter, University of Ottawa

This event is free and open to the public. Registration is required.

Parking is available at locations on campus, www.carleton.ca/campus/map

For more information, please visit www.agnieszkaweinar.com or, www.carleton.ca/ces

