

COLLOQUIUM SERIES

In Defense of an Axiological Identification

David Matheson
Carleton University

Various contributors to the meaning of life literature take the concept of a meaningful life to be that of a worthwhile life. Against this identification, Thaddeus Metz has recently presented four arguments. Here I defend the identification by raising doubts about the arguments' key premises.

Friday, September 12th, 2014

Room: 3228 River Building

Time: 3:00 pm

All are welcome!