

CALL FOR PROPOSALS

QUEER(ING) CRISIS

Struggles, Mobilizations & Possible Futures

March 2nd, 2012 - Carleton University, Ottawa

Queer(ing) Crisis is an interdisciplinary conference inviting discussions around questions of global, economic, political, legal and other forms of crisis through a queer lens. The conference will be a forum to bring together different disciplines and to provide a space for exploring the multiple perspectives concerning queer crises. The conference also seeks to build solidarity, establish alliances, and to cultivate an intellectual community amongst those working in critical sexuality studies.

The planning committee for the Queer(ing) Crisis conference welcomes submissions and statements of interest for traditional papers, as well as alternative proposals such as artistic and performative interventions to be presented at the 2012 conference.

We encourage contributions that provide queer interventions on the intersections of crisis, possibilities and;

- conflict, security, and militarization
- space, place, temporalities, and scales
- governance, regulation and law
- intersectionality, race, class, (dis)abilities, genders and sexualities
 - academy, education and queer methodologies/pedagogies
 - queer mobilizations and community engagement
- identities, subjectivities and bodies
- finance, debt/value and marketization
- labour, consumption and globalization

(This is by no means an exhaustive or exclusive list, only a suggested one.)

In your submission, please include: name, affiliation, paper/project abstract of between 250-300 words, as well as 3-5 keywords. Please email submissions to queerconferencecarleton@gmail.com by January 8th, 2012
