Course Description

Religion 1711 begins with an overview of the study of religion as a discipline, then introduces the historical development, basic beliefs and practices of the major South and East Asian traditions. Religions of Indic origin comprise the greater part of the course. We will also examine Confucianism, Daoism and Shinto in East Asia, observing the impact of Buddhism in China and Japan.

Lectures discuss historical, conceptual, social and cultural topics within each tradition and regular attendance is expected. Multimedia resources provide some impressions of the geographic, demographic, aesthetic and ritual dimensions of these traditions.

Teaching and Learning Objectives:

This course is designed so that you will:

- (1) develop an understanding of the methods and perspectives proper to the academic study of religion;
- (2) develop an informed appreciation for the beliefs, values and practices of a variety of religious traditions;
- (3) improve your ability to analyze and interpret culturally unfamiliar materials;
- (4) become more aware of your own cultural and personal assumptions, beliefs, and biases;
- (5) develop skills to think critically about your own and others' worldviews;
- (6) develop an ability to communicate your understanding to others.

Course Evaluation:

The final grade of this course is based on the following:

Class participation (10%)

Two in-class tests (25% each)

Final Exam (40%)

There is no major research paper.

Participation includes consistent attendance, responding to and asking questions, offering comments, and use of WebCT resources.

Tests will be based on textbook readings and lecture material.

- 1) Test on Hindu and Jain sections. Seventy-five minutes, in class. Ten short descriptive answers and two essay questions.
- 2) Test on Buddhist and Sikh sections. Seventy-five minutes, in class. Ten short descriptive answers and two essay questions.

3) Final Examination. Two hours, scheduled by Scheduling and Exam Services. Ten short descriptive answers and three essay questions. The final exam will cover the sections on China and Japan, plus the Introductory and closing sections on religion as an academic discipline.

Notes on Writing the Tests & Exam:

The in-class tests and final exam will each consist of

- 1) Description of ten key technical terms, in a sentence or two (no point-form answers), that identifies a term's meaning and its context within its tradition. This is not to be thought of as a "definition" but as an exploration of the terminology in the widest sense.
- 2) Brief essays, of one and a half to three pages each (handwritten, double-spaced), on key themes showing how various concepts, themes and practices relate to one another within a religious system.
- 3) There will be NO multiple choice options.
- 4) Total written responses on the in-class tests should be 5 to 8 pages, and on the final exam, 8 to 12 pages (handwritten, double-spaced).

Students must write both in-class tests and the final examination to receive credit for the course. Do not plan to travel on examination dates. There are no grade-raising exams or assignments in this course. If you miss a test unavoidably, you must provide adequate written documentation (e.g. a doctor's note, an obituary) for your incapacity. Alternative in-class tests will not be offered and a timely resolution will have to be negotiated with the instructor to meet the criteria of good standing should a student wish to be eligible to write a deferred final exam.

"Standing in a course is determined by the course instructor subject to the approval of the Faculty Dean. This means that grades submitted by the instructor may be subject to revision. No grades are final until they have been approved by the Dean."

Please see "REGULATIONS COMMON TO ALL HUMANITIES COURSES" at the end of this Course Outline for policy on plagiarism, the grading system, academic accommodation and petitions to defer. The University's policies on Academic Integrity and Offences apply in the writing of all tests and research assignments.

Important: Because it is the student's responsibility to ensure comprehensibility for purposes of grading, all test answers are expected to be written in full sentence form, not in phrases of a few words nor in point form. Correct spelling and grammar are expected and deficiencies will influence grading. Vague intentions that must be conjectured from confused writing cannot be graded. Get into the practice of using a good dictionary.

REGULATIONS COMMON TO ALL HUMANITIES COURSES

COPIES OF WRITTEN WORK SUBMITTED

Always retain for yourself a copy of all essays, term papers, written assignments or take-home tests submitted in your courses.

PLAGIARISM

The University Senate defines plagiarism as "presenting, whether intentional or not, the ideas, expression of ideas or work of others as one's own." This can include:

- reproducing or paraphrasing portions of someone else's published or unpublished material, regardless of the source, and presenting these as one's own without proper citation or reference to the original source;
- submitting a take-home examination, essay, laboratory report or other assignment written, in whole or in part, by someone else;
- using ideas or direct, verbatim quotations, or paraphrased material, concepts, or ideas without appropriate acknowledgment in any academic assignment;
- using another's data or research findings;
- failing to acknowledge sources through the use of proper citations when using another's works and/or failing to use quotation marks;
- handing in "substantially the same piece of work for academic credit more than once without prior written permission of the course instructor in which the submission occurs."

Plagiarism is a serious offence which cannot be resolved directly with the course's instructor. The Associate Deans of the Faculty conduct a rigorous investigation, including an interview with the student, when an instructor suspects a piece of work has been plagiarized. Penalties are not trivial. They can include a final grade of "F" for the course

This supporting documentation must specify the date of onset of the illness, the degree of incapacitation, and the expected date of recovery.

If you are applying for a deferral for reasons other than personal illness, please contact the Registrar's Office directly for information on other forms of documentation that we accept.

Deferrals of assignments must be supported by confirmation of the assignment due date, for example a copy of the course outline specifying the due date and any documented extensions from the course instructor.

Deferral applications for examination or assignments must be submitted within 5 working days of the original final exam.
