Course Description: The Undergraduate Calendar describes this course as covering “The economic, social and political challenges facing countries of West Africa, including domestic issues and regional relations.” The countries that may be discussed include: Benin, Burkina Faso, Cape Verde, Cote d’Ivoire, Gambia, Ghana, Guinea, Guinea Bissau, Liberia, Mali, Niger, Nigeria, Senegal, Sierra Leone, and Togo. The course specifically explores the geographical and historical backgrounds of the region, then examines conflicts and emerging terrorist activities; migration and displacement; brain drain, brain gain and remittances; youth and cultural renaissance (the example of Nollywood and emerging forms of popular cultural production). Largely interdisciplinary in approach, the course seeks to acquaint students with fundamental knowledge of the West African region. The readings include historical, political, literary and cultural texts drawn from traditional and electronic formats to underline both the common and distinctive sociopolitical and economic relations between the peoples and countries of the region.

Expected outcomes

a) Enable students to acquire better knowledge of the physical and cultural geography of the West African region.

b) Expose students to some of the region’s exciting literary, visual, musical production, and youth culture and activism

c) Develop in-depth knowledge of one of the continent’s regions and thereby empower students to rethink the narrow conception of Africa as a monolithic country imagined in the Western media.

d) Hone students’ skills at critical reading, critical thinking, and critical writing.

e) Promote professional development through students’ participation in group presentations.

Course Format
This course is designed as a three-hour weekly lecture. Weekly lectures may be divided into two parts—the first part will be traditional lecture style delivered by the instructor, while the second part will be discursive, requiring students to participate in group discussions and presentations. At the discussion sessions, students are required to engage in deeper critical conversations with the texts and the main themes of the course. To do so, students must be prepared to participate fully in an informed way. The assigned readings for the week will be critically discussed in order to develop students’ understanding of the subject or theme of the week. The group discussions will play an essential part in developing students’ critical thinking skills and deepening their knowledge of the topics. Students are strongly encouraged to read the assigned texts ahead of the class and to bring questions concerning the texts and themes for discussion.

NB: Other required readings can be found in the “Course Calendar” section below, and on the Library Ares section of the course CuLearn. While some of the texts are available online at no costs, students are advised to access the readings when they are on campus or signed into the Library and can freely access the university library databases. Otherwise, students may be charged for the same texts if off-campus and not logged in. Also, students must access and study ALL texts, including YouTube videos, before the class, and familiarize themselves with the texts for their exam as they will not be allowed to access the texts during the exam.

To successfully complete this course, students must:

- Have access to their university e-mail account and library databases. All communication for the course must be written in a formal way and from your valid CARLETON email address. Please note: Before sending urgent emails remember that it may take about two business days for the Instructor to reply to emails—this means the professor may not reply emails during weekends and statutory holidays.

- Attend lectures regularly and on time to avoid disrupting the instructor and fellow students. Participation in class is vital for fostering your understanding of the course materials. More than THREE absences from the lectures without tenable excuses approved by the professor prior to the lecture (except under documented emergency situations) may be penalized by the deduction of a third of a letter grade from the student’s participation grade (for example, A- to B+, B- to C+, C- to D+, etc.).

- Submit all papers on time electronically and in hardcopy on time as late papers will not be tolerated and may be penalized by the deduction of 3% for each day the assignment is overdue. Please note: Once the papers submitted on time are graded and returned, no further papers will be accepted unless there is a documented medical note or other proof of a legitimate reason for lateness.

- If a late submission of a paper or an assignment is unavoidable (i.e. legitimate personal or medical reasons), please inform the Instructor by the due date and have written documentation available. Assignments MUST be submitted on the due date at the end of class. All late assignments must be handed in-person either in class, office hours, or by appointment, but not through the dropbox unless specifically approved by the professor on a case by case basis.
- Please note: All formal papers for the course must use MLA style manual available here: https://library.carleton.ca/sites/default/files/research/course-guides/Using%20MLA%20style%20-%20Final%202015-08-17.pdf

- Hand-in notes, cards, and oral remarks given with your handed-in paper are unacceptable.

- 24-Hour Rule: Marked papers will be returned at the end of class. The instructor will not discuss the paper or its grade, until at least 24 hours later. At the expiration of the 24 hours please feel free to meet first with the professor to discuss the paper and the grade. If you are not satisfied, you may meet the Professor, and then apply the formal appeal structure if you are still not satisfied.

- Read ahead of class meetings on scheduled texts for the course. If necessary, changes may be made to the schedule. When absent, you will be responsible for finding out about any changes made to the schedule or any assignments which were announced in class. I will not provide notes or slides to students who miss class. Students must also be attentive to CuLearn as updates, supplemental texts, and important information about the course will be posted there. Students are encouraged to share any resources related to the course that they encounter in their personal research for the benefit of the whole class.

- Ensure that all digital devices are muted before class. And if you must use laptops in the class be sure that the sound of your keypads does not distract your colleagues. Also ensure that your laptop use is limited to course-related activity. Students engaged in other activities with their laptops may be asked to leave the class.

- Avoid sexist, racist, and homophobic remarks as these will not be tolerated in class. Any behaviour considered disruptive to the professor and/or other students is not acceptable. Students engaging in such behaviour will be dealt with according to university regulations.

REGULATIONS COMMON TO ALL AFRICAN STUDIES COURSES

COPIES OF WRITTEN WORK SUBMITTED

Always retain for yourself a copy of all essays, term papers, written assignments or take-home tests submitted in your courses.

PLAGIARISM

The University Senate defines plagiarism as "presenting, whether intentionally or not, the ideas, expression of ideas or work of others as one's own." This can include:

- reproducing or paraphrasing portions of someone else's published or unpublished material, regardless of the source, and presenting these as one’s own without proper citation or reference to the original source;
- submitting a take home examination, essay, laboratory report or other assignment written, in whole or in part, by someone else;
- using ideas or direct, verbatim quotations, or paraphrased material, concepts, or ideas without appropriate acknowledgment in any academic assignment;
- using another's data or research findings;
- failing to acknowledge sources through the use of proper citations when using another’s works and/or failing to use quotation marks;
- handing in "substantially the same piece of work for academic credit more than once without prior written permission of the course instructor in which the submission occurs."

There's no use being clever by half by using a "thesaurus app to ring the changes on essays copy-and-pasted from the internet" as captured in this amusing article about "sinister buttocks" from The Guardian (here). The futility of masking plagiarism through word games or synonyms cannot be overemphasized. It's like playing the proverbial ostrich by burying one's head in the sand while the bare rump is left exposed. Stay clear of plagiarism like a plague. There's no outsmarting the instructor, and the consequences are severe!

Plagiarism is a serious offence which cannot be resolved directly with the course’s instructor as the instructor is obligated to report suspected cases. The Associate Dean of the Faculty conducts a rigorous investigation, including an interview with the student, when an instructor suspects a piece of work has been plagiarized. Penalties are not trivial. They can include a final grade of "F" for the course, and a note on the student’s academic
