

Institute of
African Studies
CARLETON UNIVERSITY

PRESENTS

“Do UN natural resource sanctions work?: Evidence from Somalia”

Image Credit: dhow trafficking illicit charcoal from Somalia (United Nations, S/2018/1002, annex 7.3)

By

Charles Cater, PhD

Former United Nations Sanctions Investigator

Wednesday, November 20, 2019 | 1:00pm - 2:30 pm
Room 482 (Discovery Centre), MacOdrum Library
Carleton University*

Abstract

A former UN sanctions investigator will share insights from three years experience in the field monitoring and reporting on sanctions implementation, including how sanctions have affected the peace process in Somalia. More broadly, the talk will also discuss the ban on the export of charcoal from Somalia as a case study regarding the efficacy of UN natural resource sanctions.

About

Charles Cater was appointed by the UN Secretary-General for three consecutive years as a natural resources expert for the Somalia and Eritrea Monitoring Group, which had an investigative mandate from the Security Council to monitor and report on sanctions implementation. He holds a DPhil in international relations from the University of Oxford.

This is part of the African Studies Brownbag Seminar Series

For more information, please contact the Institute of African Studies at 613-520-2600 ext. 2220 or African_Studies@carleton.ca and (<http://www.carleton.ca/africanstudies/>)

*For a campus map, please see: <http://carleton.ca/campus/map/>