

NOKOKO

10

2022

The Aesthetics, Politics, and Cultural
Economy of African Stand-up Comedy

NOKOKO

10

Special issue:

The Aesthetics, Politics, and Cultural
Economy of African Stand-up Comedy

Nokoko is an open-access journal promoting dialogue, discourse and debate on Pan-Africanism, Africa and Africana. Nokoko brings forward the foundational work of Professor Daniel Osabu-Kle and his colleagues when they started the Journal of Pan-African Wisdom in 2005. ‘Nokoko’ is a Ga word that means something that is new, novel, surprising and interesting. The journal offers a venue for scholarship to challenge enduring simplified views of Africa and the African diaspora, by providing other perspectives and insights that may be surprising, interesting, and refreshing.

Combining spaces for academic and community reflection, Nokoko creates an opportunity for discussion of research that reflects on the complicated nature of pan-African issues. It provides a forum for the publication of work from a cross disciplinary perspective that reflects scholarly endeavour, policy discussions, practitioners’ reflections, and social activists’ thinking concerning the continent and beyond. Hosted by the Institute of African Studies at Carleton University (in Ottawa, Canada), Nokoko provides a space for emerging and established scholars to publish their work on Africa and the African diaspora.

The Editorial Board of Nokoko is

Editors-in-Chief

Nduka Otiono, Associate Professor, Institute of African Studies

Christine Duff, Director, Institute of African Studies.

Book Review Editor

Wangui Kimari, Postdoctoral researcher, African Centre for Cities, University of Cape Town.

Sinmi Akin-Aina, African Leadership Centre for Peace, Conflict and Development Research

Chichi Ayalogu, PhD Student in Cultural Mediations, Institute of Comparative Studies in Literature, Art and Culture Carleton University

Daniel Baheta, Senior Development Officer, Canadian International Development Agency (CIDA)

Emma Bider, PhD Student in Social and Cultural Analysis, Concordia University

Alex Caramento, PhD candidate in Politics, York University

Elizabeth Cobbett, International Political Economy, University of East Anglia

Logan Cochrane, Global and International Studies, Carleton University Anne Harley, School of Education, University of KwaZulu-Natal

Shireen Hassim, Institute of African Studies, Carleton University

Chris Huggins, School of International Development and Global Studies, University of Ottawa

Pablo Idahosa, Professor, Development Studies, York University

Luam Kidane, Researcher and Strategist

Firoze Manji, adjunct professor, African Studies, Carleton University; activist, publisher and scholar

Toby Leon Moorsom, PhD (Queen’s, Kingston), MA, (York, Toronto), and BA, Hon (Dalhousie)

James Murombedzi, African Climate Policy Centre, United Nations Economic Commission for Africa

Grace Adeniyi Ogunyankin, Departments of Geography and Planning and Gender Studies at Queen’s University

Richard Raber, PhD student in History, Indiana University

Blair Rutherford, Professor, Department of Sociology and Anthropology and African Studies, Carleton University

Sylvia Tamale, Professor, Faculty of Law, Makerere University

James Tar Tsaaor, Professor and Alexander von Humboldt Experienced Researcher, University of Potsdam, Germany

Daniel Tubb, Associate Professor, Department of Anthropology, University of New Brunswick

Kaitlin Walker, Policy and Program Officer

Layout: Kolade Olanrewaju Freedom

Cover concept and photography | Editor, Special Issue: Nduka Otiono

Cover design: Alyssa Tremblay, Digital Content & Media Specialist, Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences, Carleton University.

Table of Contents

Introduction: The Aesthetics, Politics, and Cultural Economy of African Stand-up Comedy Nduka Otiono	v
The Logic of Laughter and the Ecology of Ethno-Cultural Representation in Nigerian Stand-up Comedy James Tar Tsaaior	1
From Alarinjo to Oniduro: Stand-up Comedy as a Neo-Cultural Expression Doyin Aguoru	19
Comedy on the Cusp of Plurality: Gbenga Adeboye and the Context of Social Critique in Nigeria Adeshina Afolayan	41
Comedy at the Junction of Popular and Political Cultures in Guinea: The Cases of Gèètò, Tyotyop, and L'Homme Mohamed Saliou Camara	63
Performing Humour on Ugandan Buses: Preliminary Insights on the Jokes Performed by Hawkers of Medicinal Products Danson Sylvester Kahyana	83
Representations of the Nigerian Police and Policing in Stand-up Comedy: Tracking Embedded Meanings and Implications Chikezirim Nwoke	101
Lexical Cohesion as a Narrative Force in the Jokes of I Go Die Destiny Idegbekwe	117
Collective Beliefs as Script Triggers: A Case Study of Gordons' Stand-up Comedy Performance Lynda Chinenye Ambrose	131
Standing Up, Talking Back: Stand-up Comedy, African Immigrants and Belonging in Canada Eyitayo Aloh	149
Appendix: What has gender got to do with African comedy and stand-up acts? Nduka Otiono	163

Book Reviews

Bakassi, Okey. (2019) The Memoirs of an African Comedian. Lagos: Tribal Marks Media. Reviewer: Ifesinachi Nwadike, Independent writer and scholar. _____ 177

Taylor, Steven J. L. (2019). Exiles, Entrepreneurs, and Educators: African Americans in Ghana. State University of New York Press.

Reviewer: Emmanuel Graham, York University

Ratele, Kopano (2019). The World Looks Like This From Here: Thoughts on African Psychology. Wits University Press.

Reviewer: Hicham Gourgem, Carleton University

Achebe, Nwando (2020). Female Monarchs and Merchant Queens in Africa. Ohio University Press.

Reviewer: Elizabeth Cobbett, University of East Anglia

Langdon, Jonathan (2020). African Social Movement Learning: The Case of the Ada Songor Salt Movement. Brill.

Reviewer: Reviewer: Kofi Takyi Asante, University of Ghana, Legon

Tubb, Daniel (2020). Shifting Livelihoods: Gold Mining and Subsistence in the Chocó, Colombia. University of Washington Press.

Reviewer: Caroline Katisya, University of Nairobi

Lee, C. K. (2017). The specter of global China: Politics, labor, and foreign investment in Africa, University of Chicago Press.

Reviewer: Dinko Hanaan Dinko, Department of Geography and the Environment, University of Denver

Institute of African Studies
 Carleton University (Ottawa, Canada)
 2022 (10)

Contributors

Adeshina Afolayan is a professor of Philosophy at the University of Ibadan, Nigeria. His fields of specialization include philosophy of politics, African cultural studies, and African philosophy. He is the editor of Auteuring Nollywood (2014), a co-editor of the Palgrave Handbook of African Philosophy (2017), the author of Philosophy and National Development in Nigeria (2018), a co-editor of Pentecostalism and Politics in Africa (2018), a co-editor of Indigenous Knowledge System and Development in Africa (2020), co-editor of Pathways to Alternative Epistemologies in Africa (2021), editor of Identities, Histories and Values in Postcolonial Nigeria (2021).

Adedoyin Aguru is a Senior Lecturer at the University of Ibadan. A graduate of International Relations, English Studies and Comparative Studies respectively from Obafemi Awolowo University, University of Ibadan and University of Ilorin, her research interests cover biographical discourses, studies in national and cultural identity and comparative studies in Nigerian and Japanese drama. She is also a playwright, member of the Advisory Board of CODESRIA African Academic Diaspora Support to African Universities' Program, and President of the African Association for Japanese Studies. She was a visiting scholar at the Arts Research Centre, Ritsumeikan University, Kyoto, Japan in 2007.

Eyitayo Aloh is an assistant professor (limited-term) in the Department of Communication and Critical Thinking at Trent University. His research focuses on African and global literature, humour and the representation of African/ Black culture in Canada. He teaches courses on Black Experience in Canada, African Literature and African-Canadian culture. He is a member of the International Society for Humour Studies (ISHS).

Lynda Chinenye Ambrose is a Lecturer at Western Delta University, Oghara, Delta State and a doctoral candidate at the University of Benin. She holds an MPhil in English Language and her articles have appeared in academic journals in Nigeria and abroad. She is a member of the West African Linguistic Association (WALC), Linguistic Association of Nigeria (LAN), Pragmatics Association of Nigeria (PrAN) and English Scholars Association of Nigeria (ESAN). She is also a participant in Forum for African Women Educationalist, (FAWE), Delta State Chapter, Nigeria.

Kofi Takyi Asante is a political sociologist and a senior research fellow at the Institute of Statistical, Social and Economic Research (ISSER) at the University of Ghana. His research interests include state formation, agricultural commercialisation, citizenship, and development. His research over the years have focused on exploring the emergence, transformations, and contemporary character of the Ghanaian state, as well as the implication of these political economy trends on citizenship and civic engagement.

Mohamed Saliou Camara is a Professor of History, Philosophy, and Mass Communication and the Chair of the Department of African Studies at Howard University. He received his Ph.D. from Northwestern University in History on a Fulbright Scholarship. He also holds Diplôme d'Études Supérieures from the University of Conakry, Guinea in History and Philosophy, and an Advanced Professional Degree in Journalism from the University of Dakar, Senegal. Professor Camara taught at Embry-Riddle Aeronautical University in Florida where he also served as Speaker of the Faculty Senate and Associate Vice President for Academics. In 2009, he received the Outstanding Teacher of the Year Award. In Guinea, Camara worked as a lecturer and associate chair of the Department of Philosophy at the University of Conakry, a journalist for the National Radio Television Network and a correspondent for Radio France International, and a speechwriter for the Press Bureau of the Presidency of the Republic. Professor Camara is the author of seven books and numerous book chapters and articles on African political history, political communication, media and society, religion and philosophy, the military and politics, human security, and intra-African foreign relations.

Elizabeth Cobbett is a lecturer in International Political Economy at the University of East Anglia, UK. Her research focuses on emerging financial geographies of transnational monetary power across Africa as the continent deepens its integration into global capital networks. Her study, The Quest for Economic and Monetary Sovereignty in 21st Century Africa was recently published, and she is currently writing a monograph, The Political Economy of African Financial Centres: The New Realm of Global Finance.

Dinko Hanaan Dinko is a PhD candidate in the Department of Geography & the Environment, University of Denver, Denver, CO 80210. E-mail: hdinko@du.edu. His research focuses on drones in human-environment research, natural resource management, water resources, geopolitics of resource exploration and China in Africa.

Hicham Gourgem is an adjunct professor of English at the University of Ottawa, College La Cite, Algonquin College, and College Universel. His research focuses on the representations of African Identities in contemporary African literature. He is interested in migrant literature, North African literature, Sub-Saharan literature, postcolonialism, and transnationalism. He holds a PhD from Carleton University's Cultural Mediations program (literary studies), and his research has been published in The Transnational Social Review and Bokkos Journal of Humanities Research.

Emmanuel Graham is a doctoral candidate in the Department of Politics at York University. He was a consultant Extractive Governance Policy Advisor at the Africa Centre for Energy Policy (ACEP). His research focuses on the political economy of the extractive sector, energy politics and climate change in Ghana and other West African states. His research also covers the role of civil society in tackling the resource curse in Ghana as well as oil exploration and production in sub-Saharan Africa. He is also interested in the social and political thoughts of Kwame Nkrumah and Karl Marx.

Destiny Idegbekwe is a lecturer in the Department of English and Literary Studies at University of Africa, Toru-Orua, Bayelsa State, Nigeria. He holds a PhD in English Studies from the University of Port Harcourt, Nigeria. His areas of interest are ESL, Applied Linguistics, Discourse Study, pragmatics and English Syntax. He has contributed to many local and international scholarly journals. He was the President of the English and Literature Students' Association during his undergraduate days at the University of Benin, Nigeria.

Danson Sylvester Kahyana is a Senior Lecturer in the Department of Literature, Makerere University. He holds a PhD in English Studies from Stellenbosch University. He is a recipient of three postdoctoral research fellowships: Fulbright Research Fellowship, 2020-2021; Andrew W. Mellon, 2018-2019; and the African Humanities Programme, 2015-2016. He has published creative writing and critical works and edited some anthologies, including Fire on the Mountain (2018), As I Stood Dead Before the World (2018), and A Word or Two Before We Part (2021). He is President emeritus, Ugandan PEN International, and a member of the Board, PEN International.

Caroline Katisya is an Advocate and an energy legal consultant practising with the firm of Njoroge and Katisya Advocates, Mombasa, Kenya. She has a LL.M in Energy law and policy (Dundee) and is a part-time lecturer at the University of Nairobi, School of Law, Mombasa Campus. She is passionate about the interaction between communities and the energy and extractives sectors. She is a member of the Kenya Renewable Energy Association and a member of the Law Society of Kenya.

Ifesinachi Nwadike is a rapper, essayist, poet, and playwright. He obtained his BA and MA in English Literature respectively from Imo State University and University of Ibadan. A 2018 Ebedi International Writers Residency alumni, his works have appeared in Ake Review, ANA Review, The Sun Review, Praxis Magazine, Black Boy Review, Ngiga Review, Naij.com etcetera. He is the founder and facilitator of Ngiga Book Club. His debut poetry collection, How Morning Remembers the Night, published by Winepress Publishing and Griots Lounge Publishing, was shortlisted for the ANA Poetry Prize 2020. His Afrobeat hit single, "Mighty Error" (2022) has recently been released under M&M RelyvantMixing label.

Chikezirim Nwoke is a Vanier Scholar and doctoral candidate in the Department of Sociology and Anthropology, Carleton University. He holds a Bachelor's degree from the University of Nigeria Nsukka, a Master's degree in International Media Culture from Darmstadt University of Applied Sciences, Germany, and a second Master's in Anthropology from Memorial University of Newfoundland, Canada. He has been a Mitacs-Globalink Scholar and Visiting Research Student at the Centre of African Studies, University of Edinburgh. Nwoke is passionate about youths, popular culture, and development in Africa. He is the co-editor of an anthology of articles on the #EndSARS uprising in Nigeria titled #Ozugo: 16 Impressions of a Popular Youth Protest (2021).

Nduka Otiono is an associate professor of African Studies and English at Carleton University. He is the author and co-editor of several books of creative writing and academic research including Oral Literary Performance in Africa: Beyond Text (2021). Prior to turning to academia, he was for many years a journalist in Nigeria and General Secretary of the Association of Nigerian Authors. His research has appeared in top-ranked journals, and his creative writing books include his recently re-issued debut, The Night Hides with a Knife (1995 [2021]) and DisPlace: The Poetry of Nduka Otiono (2021). Otiono is President of the Canadian Association of African Studies (CAAS), member of the board of directors of the Canadian Authors Association, and joint editor-in-chief of Nokoko, journal of the Institute of African Studies, Carleton University.

James Tar Tsaaior is a Professor of English, Media and Cultural Studies and Senior Associate Research Fellow, Department of English of the University of the Free State, Bloemfontein, South Africa. He was until recently Alexander von Humboldt Experienced Research Fellow and visiting professor in the Centre for Anglophone and American Studies of the University of Potsdam, Germany. He has also held visiting fellowships and professorships in Cambridge, Princeton, and Columbia. His research interests cover African literatures, postcolonial studies, gender, film cultures, and literature and new media. His latest book is Autobiography, Memory and Nationhood in Anglophone Africa (Routledge 2022) and he is currently researching on stand-up comedy and Nigeria's postcolonial imaginary.