

GINS 3020 [0.5 credit]

Places, Boundaries, Movements and Global Environmental Change

Examination of the relationship between individual places and global social and environmental processes. The changing nature of regions, states and political boundaries in the context of political and economic globalization and international migration. Social Science perspectives on climate change vulnerability, adaptation and mitigation.

Prerequisite(s): third-year standing in B.G.In.S.

Lectures three hours a week.