

Language Requirement registration information for Bachelor of Humanities – Biology and Humanities

Requirement

In the BHUM Humanities and Biology you must become proficient in a language other than English at the Intermediate level.

Common choices for a second language are Greek, Latin, French, German, Italian, Russian, Spanish, or Hebrew, but any language other than English is acceptable.

Your first year BHUM Humanities and Biology course registration is affected by your current proficiency in the language you will use to satisfy your requirement.

Instructions

Decide which language you wish to use to satisfy your requirement. If needed, write the Carleton placement test in that language (see below).

The placement test will tell you one of three things:

1. You are not proficient enough to start an Intermediate course.
2. You are proficient enough to start an Intermediate course.
3. You are already proficient at an Intermediate level.

Follow the corresponding registration advice:

1. You are not proficient enough to start an Intermediate course.

You should register in 1.0 credits in Beginner's level language courses so that in your second year you can register in the Intermediate level of that language.

In order to make room in your schedule for 1.0 credits in Beginner's courses, do not register in RELI 1731 or HUMS 1005.

2. You are proficient enough to start an Intermediate course.

For your first year registration you must register in RELI 1731 and HUMS 1005.

You will register in 1.0 credit in Intermediate language courses in your second year.

3. You are already proficient at an Intermediate level.

For your first year registration you must register in RELI 1731 and HUMS 1005.

You can apply to have your language requirement waived, and replaced with a free elective in your second year of study. Make an appointment in September with the Undergraduate Advisor in Humanities to arrange for this.

Placement Tests

French: You must write an online self-assessment placement test before enrolling in any French course at Carleton, even if you have had no previous French instruction. You can only write this test once.

A link to the test may be found here. Click on “Placement Test” in the red banner at the top of the page:

Modern Languages other than French: You must write a placement test before registering in modern language courses at Carleton if you have any previous training in that language. If you are an absolute beginner, you don't have to write a placement test. The exception is Arabic, for which you must always write a placement test.

Information on placement tests for modern languages other than French may be found here:

If you cannot come to Carleton's campus to write the placement test, contact the administrator of the School of Linguistics and Language Studies, Sharon Palmer (sharon.palmer@carleton.ca), to make alternate arrangements.

Classical Languages (Greek, Latin, Hebrew, Sanskrit): Contact the administrator for Greek and Roman Studies or for Religion for an individual assessment of your proficiency.

Greek and Roman Studies (Greek and Latin): andrea.mcintyre@carleton.ca
Religion (Hebrew, Sanskrit): barb.truscott@carleton.ca

Summer French Immersion

Students studying French should consider the Explore (myexplore.ca) summer immersion program.

If you are planning on doing an Explore exchange, consult the Registrar's office site for information on receiving Carleton credit:

carleton.ca/registrar/exchanges/letter-of-permission/

Students who complete an Explore exchange after admission to Carleton will have their level of proficiency evaluated by Carleton's French department. A sufficiently high level will satisfy your Humanities language requirement.
