

School of Indigenous and Canadian Studies

Course	CDNS 1001 Introduction to the Study of Canada
Instructor	Richard Nimijean
Term	Winter 2023 – online course: asynchronous lecture, synchronous group Tuesday, 8:35 am – 10:25 plus group
Email Address	richard.nimijean@carleton.ca
Office Location
Office Hours	ONLINE – Monday, 9:00 am – 10:30 am

COURSE DESCRIPTION / INSTRUCTOR'S STATEMENT

This course examines various approaches to the study of Canada. Students will learn about the rise of interdisciplinary Canadian Studies as an academic discipline, how it has evolved, and the different approaches to study Canadian issues. You will learn how interdisciplinary teaching and research differs from traditional academic disciplines, producing a stronger and richer explanation of Canadian phenomena. This prepares you to pursue the study of Canada in Canadian Studies, Indigenous Studies, and related disciplines.

EVALUATION

Short research and writing assignments; research essay; active participation in tutorial group. There is no final exam.