COURSE DESCRIPTION / INSTRUCTOR'S STATEMENT

This research-based course is a comparative, interdisciplinary examination of the Canada-US relationship, focusing on Canadian perspectives. We will look at key issues that define and influence the relationship, such as:

- Anti-Americanism and values differences between the countries
- Economic and defence/security integration
- Cultural similarities and differences
- Cross-border perspectives on race, ethnicity, and relations with Indigenous peoples
- The border
- The nature and future of Canadian sovereignty

EVALUATION

Short writing assignments; research presentation and written essay; active participation and group work. There is no final exam.
