

Carleton
UNIVERSITY

FACULTY OF Engineering and Design

The 2019 John Adjeleian Lecture

The Good, the Bad and the Beautiful:

Leonardo's Studies of Turbulence

with Professor Ugo Piomelli, Queen's University

Wednesday, April 10, 2019

5:30PM - 7:00PM

Richcraft Hall, Room 2200

Carleton University

You are cordially invited to attend the 2019 John Adjeleian Lecture and reception at Carleton University with guest speaker Ugo Piomelli.

This year, the Adjeleian Lecture committee is proud to partner with the Carleton University Leonardo 2019 committee, formed to commemorate and honour the 500th anniversary of Leonardo da Vinci's death in 1519. The cross-faculty Leonardo 2019 committee has proposed a university-wide series of events honouring the life and work of da Vinci, including talks on the broad theme of Leonardo's work, his life, thoughts, and impact into the modern era.

In this talk, some of Leonardo da Vinci's reflections on turbulence will be discussed, vis a vis the present understanding of this captivating but baffling subject, perhaps the last unsolved problem in classical physics