This conference brings together Commonwealth education researchers, practitioners, and higher education leaders from various countries, including Canada, India, the United Kingdom, Australia and the Caribbean, to discuss best practices for teaching and leadership in an era of massive transformation of higher education. It will explore teaching advancements in a changing higher education sector, incorporating technology into the classroom, and the importance of equipping students with new skills, aptitudes and competencies to deal with a changing world.

Organized by Carleton University in partnership with the High Commission of St. Kitts and Nevis to Canada, Khalsa College (Delhi) and NPTC Group of Colleges (UK).

To register, click here