

SHARING THE LEARNING

Enable broad sharing of individual learning from conferences and events with larger networks within and connected to CFICE.

Ways to share our discoveries and learning while also participating:

Finding ways to share learning presents a challenge in a busy, overcommitted world.

Twitter

Estimated Unique Monthly Visitors: 310,000,000.

Use #CFLearn to post comments on main learning points, enable others to view posts, track tweets and more. 144 characters only!

Others

Other means of sharing are always appreciated and encouraged. Media aggregate sites such as Reddit and Digg are some of the other ways to inform other about community engagement.

Blog Posts

Explore concepts and sharing perspectives using blog posts. Don't be limited to 144 characters! One blog post from each attendee would exponentially improve ideas and conversation.

Video Blogs

Who needs to write when you can talk!? Why not try a quick self-video, a picture story, or an infographic?

CFICE supports travel costs for CFICE members to participate in conferences and events. Conference presentations provide one way of sharing our learning through CFICE, support the building of networks, support strengthened inter hub connections.

Journal Articles

Although we recognize that they are longer term and more resource intensive, we welcome and appreciate formal publications and presentations.

Conferences are also tremendous individual learning opportunities through participants in our sessions, poster sessions, connections made, and presentations attended. Finding ways to share that learning presents a challenge in a busy, overcommitted world.
