CREWW’s writing retreats support women academics with their writing process. Current research demonstrates that academic writers are more productive and enjoy their writing more when they make writing a social activity (Belcher, W.L. 2009). These retreats create a space for women to gather and write while away from the distractions of their busy lives.

Accommodation

Pine and Birch Ranch and Retreat
837 Ch des Érables
Alcove, QC J0X 1A0
(613) 299-0200
info@pineandbirch.ca
www.pineandbirch.ca

All rates are all-inclusive, per-person, and subject to change.
- Single Occupancy: 4 nights & all meals for $560.00
- Shared Occupancy: 4 nights & all meals for $560.00

NOTE: Both single and double occupancy are available, get in touch for more details

For more information please contact AEmilia Jarvis by phone at 613-520-2650 or via email at aemiliaJarvis@cunet.carleton.ca

---

Testimonials

“A colleague and I travelled all the way from Fairbanks, Alaska for this retreat. Was it worth it? Absolutely yes. I’m taking that renewed love of writing forward to create more balance in my work and live. Thank you so much, women of CREWW!”

Jennifer L.L. Carroll, Ph.D. University of Alaska Fairbanks

“After a lengthy medical leave, the writing retreat allowed me to ease my way back into academic writing and interdisciplinary discourse in a supportive environment and beautiful natural setting. Thank you for making the Retreat a welcome kick-off to summer academic production!”

Melissa Redmond, LLB, B.C.L, M.S.W., Ph.D. Carleton University

“I was thrilled with the amount of writing I was able to accomplish. As a new faculty member, it was great to connect with other female faculty working across the university. Our conversations were wide-ranging and included sharing many common writing, research, and teaching experiences. I benefited greatly from this informal mentoring and look forward to attending next year’s retreat!”

Sarah E. K. Smith, Ph.D. Carleton University

---

- Space is limited: reservations begin on August 17, 2018
- Arrive Monday 10 a.m. to set up
- Depart on Friday after breakfast or stay until 4 p.m.
- Bring your writing project(s) and materials with you
- Breakfast, lunch, and supper are eaten together

---

CREWW Annual Fall Writing Retreat

October 22-26, 2018
carleton.ca/creww/writing-retreat

---

You’re invited

Dr. Luciara Nardon, on behalf of Carleton University’s Centre for Research and Education on Women and Work, invites you to join the fall writing retreat at the Pine and Birch Ranch and Retreat. The ranch is located in Alcove, Quebec and situated within 10 acres of private land.