

Sustainable energy in the City: Where the (bicycle) rubber hits the road

CSEERC Seminar Series

City Councillor David Chernushenko will provide an insider's view of why city governments are the ones that will be delivering on the grand promises made at international/federal/provincial levels, and why it is so darn hard. Yet critical.

David Chernushenko has been a City Councillor in Ottawa since 2010. He chairs the Environment and Climate Protection Committee.

Born in 1963 in Calgary, he has called Ottawa home for most of his life. David holds a B.A. in Political Studies from Queen's University and a Master's in International Relations from Cambridge University. He is a green building professional accredited by the LEED certification program.

Prior to being elected, David worked as a consultant, educator, writer and filmmaker with a passion for sustainable and healthy living. His most recent films focus on sound urban planning, renewable energy, and urban cycling as part of building vibrant, happier cities.

March 30 at 5:45pm
St Patricks Room 100
Carleton University

5:45-6:00 p.m. Meet the Speaker
6:00-6:45 p.m. Presentation
6:45-7:30 p.m. Q&A

Jointly presented by the
Carleton Sustainable Energy
Research Centre and
Carleton School of Public
Policy and Administration.