ABOUT THE CONFERENCE

The increasingly cooperative nature of the Nordics and Baltics signifies the strategic significance of the region to NATO alliance-wide defence and deterrence. A complex threat environment, including hybrid or “grey-zone” activity being deployed by adversaries at scale, and evolving geopolitics, are rapidly changing the European continental security environment. At the same time, NATO is strengthening cooperative mechanisms at the strategic, operational, and tactical levels to bolster the alliance’s ability to deter, detect, deny, and defend alliance territory.

In tandem with growing recognition of institutions such as the Joint Expeditionary Force (JEF), Canada contributes over 3,000 Canadian Armed Forces members to Operation REASSURANCE through 2028 and continues to lead NATO Multinational Brigade Latvia — “reinforcing Canada’s collective defence, strengthening co-operative security, and keeping NATO strong at a time of rapid global change.” Canada continues to enhance efforts in the Nordics and Baltics, such as its commitment as a Co-Framework Nation for Multinational Division-North (alongside Denmark and Latvia) to contribute to presence, deterrence, and stability in the Baltic Sea; or intensified strategic cooperation with Norway on Arctic security and Ukraine.

Questions this conference will explore

- 01 What lessons can be drawn from Canada’s engagements in Ukraine, Eastern and Northern Europe, and the Arctic to inform broader strategic posture and readiness?
- 02 In what areas could leadership and collaboration with non-Arctic states be pursued to advance Canada’s priorities in the region?
- 03 Beyond NATO, what role could other multilateral fora play regarding defence and security in the Nordic and Baltic regions?
