

NALOXONE KITS ON CAMPUS

Naloxone is a potentially life-saving treatment that can temporarily reverse the effects of an opioid overdose. It's administered through the affected person's nose in the form of a nasal spray. These kits are available for anyone in the community to use and are alarmed so that others in the area are notified. Campus Safety Services should be contacted to provide further assistance and can be reached at 613-520-4444 or extension 4444 from a campus phone. As per safety protocols, Emergency Medical Services must also be contacted upon the use of a naloxone kit.

Carleton University has installed 26 naloxone boxes across campus, with each box containing two doses of naloxone nasal spray.

The Good Samaritan Drug Overdose Act provides some legal protections for those individuals who experience or witness an overdose and call emergency services for help/assistance.

The act applies to those seeking emergency assistance during an overdose, including the individual experiencing an overdose. The Act protects the person who seeks help, whether they stay or leave the scene before help arrives. The Act also protects anyone else who is at the scene when help arrives.

Additional information on the Good Samaritan Drug Overdose Act can be located here:

<https://www.canada.ca/en/health-canada/services/opioids/about-good-samaritan-drug-overdose-act.html>

Drug overdoses could happen with others around. Staying at the scene is important to help save the life of the person experiencing an overdose.

WITNESSES SHOULD:

Call for emergency help

Be prepared to use naloxone if you suspect an opioid overdose

Provide first aid, including CPR, if necessary, until help arrives

Stay calm and reassure the person that help is on the way
