Invest in your future.

Carleton University's Sprott School of Business is a full-service business school. We explore complex management issues through our innovative programs, interdisciplinary research and collaborative partnerships.

Hiring a Carleton co-op student creates a positive business-education partnership as well as an investment in your future. As your organization looks to grow, adapt and innovate, consider the skills, perspective and energy that Carleton co-op students bring — the potential to help your business thrive.
