I. Course description: What is it, to publish? Is it to hold fast a story in memory? On a cave wall? In clay? In ink on paper and calf skin? In type? In pictures? In bits and bytes? Further, does the study and practise of ancient and modern publishing philosophies and methods hold insights into the future of human communication? This course will seek to answer questions like these by presenting a decidedly DIY approach to Studies in Publishing, combining historical and theoretical aspects with a very tactile experience of the book arts: everything from cuneiform tablets to calligraphy to book-binding. We'll peer into the Canadian marketplace with case-studies of publishers, consider the future of publishing and what the writer (or ‘creator of content’) must do to market their own work.

Discussions, essays, seminars, simulations and exercises will include historical aspects of publishing: cave paintings to ASCII text, content vs container, the book as object or artifact, illustration and the Barclay Conundrum, impact of production on content, and oral tradition (or the human book). Emphasis will be placed on conventional and traditional publishing models, on-line publishing, self-publishing, genre, the art of the book, amongst other topics.

COVID STATEMENT: Given the current circumstances, I’m willing to accommodate certain unconventional approaches to the material that may diverge from the current grading schematic, so long as they satisfy the Learning Outcomes.

II. Preclusions:

III. Learning Outcomes: By the end of the course, students will be able to:

1. Analyze relationships between current media and publishing history
• construct intellectual bridges between conventional and traditional publishing models from the past and present (with an eye to the future)
• compare and contrast digital, on-line and social media publishing

2. Examine and analyze literary history through the lens of publishing history
• interrelate facets of social, political, philosophical, psychological, aesthetic theory, including gender, race and identity
• explain and explore an entrepreneurial approach to modern publishing
• survey contemporary and historical issues in publishing
• explain the scope the contemporary Canadian and international publishing scenes
• explore aspects of the art of the book and the book arts in context of publishing

3. Construct arguments about literary publishing history
• use intellectual and academic research skills to draw logical conclusions
• report on a selected narrow subject of historical and contemporary publishing

4. Reflect on the influence and impact of material literary history
• interrelate on-line publishing, self-publishing and traditional publishing
• reflect on and analyze the relationship between various mechanisms of publishing
• reflect on and discuss the experience of "old school" techniques in relation to contemporary and future technologies

5. Synthesize ideas in words and speech through writings, seminars, discussions, simulations and exercises
• contribute to discussions on various subjects related to publishing
• distill larger subjects into abstracts, or "elevator pitches"
• “show up,” in Woody Allen’s meaning of the phrase
• use hands-on techniques in various traditional crafts unique to publishing

IV. Texts: In lieu of purchasing many texts, students will be asked to source and bring to class certain readily available, inexpensive and easily acquired implements and materials necessary for instruction in certain aspects of the book arts. In at least one case, students will be required to purchase book-binding kits from a guest instructor for a very modest fee ($20). The purpose for these will be explained in context during course discussion.

There will be suggested and assigned readings during the term. Every effort will be made to source readings that are more readily available via web, e-books, or from the library’s electronic stacks. This is a generalist course; full texts sometimes plunge into details far beyond our scope. Periodical articles or essays from collections are perhaps a better way to research in this particular instance. That being said, I will be recommending books worth reading.

An extensive list of suggested readings will be available during the first week of classes. Several books and articles will be placed on reserve in the Library.
COVID STATEMENT: Due to the difficulty accessing the MacOdrum Library physical stacks, the emphasis will be on electronic, reputable web-based sources or even the students’ personal library.

COVID STATEMENT: Course roll-out may not exactly follow this scheme. The mixed nature of delivery means that not every class will be live, in whole or part. I don’t expect the synchronous portions of classes to last three hours(!), and may eventually begin later than 8:30 am. Practicums dominate the first half of the semester, and book reports through the second.

2. Knowledge of methodologies
3. Application of knowledge
4. Communication skill
5. Awareness of limits of knowledge
6. Authority & Professional capability
[7. Experiential learning]

Standing in a course is determined by the course instructor subject to the approval of the Faculty Dean. This means that grades submitted by the instructor may be subject to revision. No grades are final until they have been approved by the Dean.

Participation will include in-class work on various projects, commentary on lectures and seminars. Excellence in participation equals the student attending all classes, and being thoroughly prepared with assigned readings completed. They must make meaningful contributions to discussions with the professor and peers, (no redundant reporting), remain attentive in class discussions, avoid distractions, engage in activities during class and stay on task. A participation rubric will be posted on CU-Learn.

COVID STATEMENT: For this semester, I am happy to define participation more broadly, as efforts to make meaningful contributions in some manner.
VII. Statement on Plagiarism

The university’s Academic Integrity Policy can be found at: https://carleton.ca/secretariat/wp-content/uploads/Academic-Integrity-Policy.pdf

PLAGIARISM

The University Senate defines plagiarism as “presenting, whether intentionally or not, the ideas, expression of ideas or work of others as one’s own.” This can include:

- reproducing or paraphrasing portions of someone else’s published or unpublished material, regardless of the source, and presenting these as one’s own without proper citation or reference to the original source;
- submitting a take-home examination, essay, laboratory report or other assignment written, in whole or in part, by someone else;
- using ideas or direct, verbatim quotations, or paraphrased material, concepts or ideas without appropriate acknowledgment in any academic assignment;
- using another’s data or research findings;
- failing to acknowledge sources through the use of proper citations when using another’s works and/or failing to use quotation marks;
- handing in substantially the same piece of work for academic credit more than once without prior written permission of the course instructor in which the submission occurs.
Plagiarism is a form of intellectual theft. It is a serious offence that cannot be resolved directly with the course’s instructor. The Associate Deans of the Faculty conduct a rigorous investigation, including an interview with the student, when an instructor suspects a piece of work has been plagiarized. Penalties are not trivial. They can include failure of the assignment, failure of the entire course, or suspension from a program. For more information please go to: https://carleton.ca/registrar/academic-integrity/

VII. Requests for Academic Accommodation

You may need special arrangements to meet your academic obligations during the term. For an accommodation request, the processes are as follows:

Pregnancy obligation: write to me with any requests for academic accommodation during the first two weeks of class, or as soon as possible after the need for accommodation is known to exist. For more details click here.

Religious obligation: write to me with any requests for academic accommodation during the first two weeks of class, or as soon as possible after the need for accommodation is known to exist. For more details click here.

Academic Accommodations for Students with Disabilities: The Paul Menton Centre for Students with Disabilities (PMC) provides services to students with Learning Disabilities (LD), psychiatric/mental health disabilities, Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD), Autism Spectrum Disorders (ASD), chronic medical conditions, and impairments in mobility, hearing, and vision. If you have a disability requiring academic accommodations in this course, please contact PMC at 613-520-6608 or pmc@carleton.ca for a formal evaluation. If you are already registered with the PMC, contact your PMC coordinator to send me your Letter of Accommodation at the beginning of the term, and no later than two weeks before the first in-class scheduled test or exam requiring accommodation (if applicable). After requesting accommodation from PMC, meet with me to ensure accommodation arrangements are made. Please consult the PMC website for the deadline to request accommodations for the formally-scheduled exam (if applicable).

Survivors of Sexual Violence
As a community, Carleton University is committed to maintaining a positive learning, working and living environment where sexual violence will not be tolerated, and where survivors are supported through academic accommodations as per Carleton’s Sexual Violence Policy. For more information about the services available at the university and to obtain information about sexual violence and/or support, visit: https://carleton.ca/equity/sexual-assault-support-services

Accommodation for Student Activities
Carleton University recognizes the substantial benefits, both to the individual student and for the university, that result from a student participating in activities beyond the classroom experience. Reasonable accommodation must be provided to students who compete or perform at the national or international level. Write to me with any requests for academic accommodation during the first two weeks of class, or as soon as possible after the need for accommodation is known to exist. https://carleton.ca/senate/wp-content/uploads/Accommodation-for-Student-Activities-1.pdf
