Objectives: Content

Central Eurasia—Kazakhstan, Kyrgyzstan, Tajikistan, Turkmenistan and Uzbekistan (the five former Soviet “stans”), as well as Afghanistan and East Turkestan, the latter ruled by China as Xinjiang province—is a geopolitical hotspot. National leaders bargain with global powers while their peoples struggle to overcome poverty, corruption and repression. This course will analyze Central Eurasian states and societies from the late nineteenth century to the present. We will investigate the legacies of Russian, British and Chinese colonialism as well as examine the region in contemporary transnational and international contexts. The course will emphasize the relationships between politics, identities, and societies in fields that include: political power; the role of networks and “clans;” the benefits and curses of natural resource wealth; the philosophy and practice of Islam; the rise of radicalism; poverty and underdevelopment; gender and the roles of women; and, certainly not least, everyday life.

Objectives: Skills

This course will develop skills to assist students in further academic pursuits or at the early stages of their careers. Included among these are critical thinking; public speaking (oral participation/ reports); ability to write concise, focused papers (short writing assignments); ability to conduct and integrate research or perform other experiential learning tasks in a critical, thoughtful manner (major assignment). We will also do small group work (project management). We will discuss, including with guest speakers, over the semester how to leverage classroom skills on the job/ academic markets.

Required Texts:

Texts will be made available through the CULearn website.

Requirements and Grading

Undergraduate Students

Oral Participation:	25%
Simulation Presentation:	10%
2 Short Papers (1-2 pp) (see due dates below):	10%
1 Medium Paper (3-4 pp) (see due dates below):	10%
Simulation briefing and participation in roundtable:	10%
Proposal and presentation of assignment (2 pp) (due Oct 11, on CULearn):	10%
Major Assignment (due Nov. 18) and presentation:	25%

READINGS WILL CHANGE

Students will be graded on in-class participation and written assignments. Consistent class participation is VITAL to succeeding in this class. Attendance is mandatory: penalties for not attending (without medical attestation) are: 1 absence= 10% deduction of entire participation grade; 2 absences= 30% deduction; 3 absences= 50% deduction; 4 absences= 100% deduction from participation grade. Each late arrival (after 11:40) will cost 25% of that day's attendance/ participation grade for every 15 minutes late. Ringing cellphones, note passing, under (or over) the table texting and other disruptions will also result in a loss of the participation mark on the same scale as absences.

Participation grades will be determined based on: (a) attendance and attention level and (b) active participation that: (i) displays awareness of the subject (ii) contributes to the flow of conversation (iii) shows knowledge of the readings and (iv) offers critical analysis of the topic.

Each student will give one SHORT (5 minute) simulation/presentation over the semester. The presentation can take various forms. For example, it might simulate an analytical briefing of an important current event, based on news sources, such as an area-studies expert would give to a politician, minister, NGO director etc. Another would be to present an "artefact"—e.g. a song, image of a monument, map, short video clip—and briefly discuss its importance, as might a museum director or other professional. The student could also lobby as a human rights representative or an entrepreneur. Students will sign up for individual weeks.

The short and medium papers will analyze the readings for individual weeks—more than one but not necessarily all. Only one paper may be handed in for each week. The essays will involve identification of a selected theme that runs across the readings and development of an argument that will involve critical analysis of the authors' views and use of their findings. Papers will be due on the day of discussion, or one week later; in the latter case, the student will not receive credit for ideas discussed in class. Papers may be handed in on any week, BUT the first short/medium paper must be handed in ON OR BEFORE Sep 25, the second, Oct 16, third, Dec 4.

The major project may take various forms. Students can write a "traditional" research paper. This will be based on primary sources (most likely in translation) or secondary sources (in this case, you are expected to engage debates of the issue). There are other variants. This might include extended briefing notes; guides to museum displays; proposals for development projects, etc.

The paper proposal will be 1-2 pages. It will include (a) a paragraph on your topic, its central "puzzle"/ inspiration/justification and your approach (b) a paragraph on research strategy (how you went about finding sources); (c) a paragraph (or annotated bibliography) on how 5-7 sources you have collected will be used for your paper. Students will then submit the final version on November 15.

Students will then present major findings through a presentation, poster display or other channels at our class on November 20. Further details on major assignments will be given mid-late September.

Do NOT cite Wikipedia or similar crowd-sourced pages in your written work, and be careful and critical of websites not included on the list at the end of the syllabus (even those on the list will have their own issues/lean).

Late papers will be penalized one letter grade (i.e. A- to B+) per day late. No work will be accepted after the end of classes.

READINGS WILL CHANGE

Assignments sent electronically will not be accepted without prior consent of the instructor. It is not acceptable to hand in the same assignment for two or more courses. To obtain credit in a course, students must meet ALL the course requirements for attendance, term work, and examinations.

Medical attestation: I will request medical notes for absences of more than one class. For a one-class absence, I will have students sign a form that I will provide, attesting to a legitimate medical condition.

Note: no laptops/ tablets/ phones will be allowed for use in class, except as needed during presentations.

Plagiarism

The University Senate defines plagiarism as “presenting, whether intentional or not, the ideas, expression of ideas or work of others as one’s own.” This can include:

- reproducing or paraphrasing portions of someone else’s published or unpublished material, regardless of the source, and presenting these as one’s own without proper citation or reference to the original source;
- submitting a take-home examination, essay, laboratory report or other assignment written, in whole or in part, by someone else;

READINGS WILL CHANGE

- using ideas or direct, verbatim quotations, or paraphrased material, concepts, or ideas without appropriate acknowledgment in any academic assignment;
- using another's data or research findings;
- failing to acknowledge sources through the use of proper citations when using another's works and/or failing to use quotation marks;
- handing in "substantially the same piece of work for academic credit more than once without prior written permission of the course instructor in which the submission occurs.

Plagiarism is a serious offence which cannot be resolved directly with the course's instructor. The Associate Deans of the Faculty conduct a rigorous investigation, including an interview with the student, when an instructor suspects a piece of work has been plagiarized. Penalties are not trivial. They may include a mark of zero for the plagiarized work or a final grade of "F" for the course.

Student or professor materials created for this course (including presentations and posted notes, labs, case studies, assignments and exams) remain the intellectual property of the author(s). They are intended for personal use and may not be reproduced or redistributed without prior written consent of the author(s).

For essays not returned in class please attach a stamped, self-addressed envelope if you wish to have your assignment returned by mail. Final exams are intended solely for the purpose of evaluation and will not be returned.
