COURSE DESCRIPTION:
In our contemporary globally interconnected world, religion, migration and diaspora have become prominent issues in shaping social, cultural, economic, and political relations. Yet, the scholarly literature that addresses each of these themes often remains compartmentalized and has yet to sufficiently explore the intersections between them. In this course, we will examine the intersections of religion, migration, and diaspora, conceptually and empirically, drawing on historical and contemporary examples.

Questions that we will explore include: What role does religion play in processes of migration and in what ways are religious categories used (or not used) by migrants or other actors to make sense of their experience? When does religion become salient in the process of migration? How do we conceptualize diaspora? What is the relationship between diaspora, religion, and nationhood? What is the significance of transnational networks and connections in maintaining diasporic identities? How are ties to real and imagined homelands used to construct diasporic identities and what role does memory and heritage work play in sustaining them?

Geographically, the course readings will focus on Europe including Russia and the enduring transnational connections with regions of the world that were formerly colonized by European powers. For their research projects, students may choose to write on traditions and regions other than those represented here as long as the topic relates to the broader themes of the course.

COURSE OBJECTIVES AND OUTCOMES:
• Upon successful completion of this course, you will have gained knowledge of key concepts in the study of religion, migration, and diaspora and the ability to apply these concepts in the analysis of particular cases.
• You will have acquired knowledge and the ability to apply analytical concepts related to the study of religious and ethnic diversity and the socio-cultural construction of identities, in both historical and contemporary contexts.
• You will have gained practice in analyzing and interpreting the scholarly literature on religion, migration and diaspora.
• Through your written work, classroom discussions, and oral presentations, you will gain practice in applying theories and concepts learned to particular cases. You will also have further developed your writing, editing, and analytical skills.
• You will have gained experience in the conduct of research (finding materials using library catalogue and databases, compiling bibliographies, taking notes on sources) in your proposal and research paper assignment.
In oral presentations and in participation in class discussions you will have honed public speaking skills and your ability to present and debate arguments and opinions that are supported by evidence. Work-in-progress presentations will also provide opportunities to gain experience fielding queries and feedback from your peers, an important component of the peer-review process.

REQUIRED COURSE READINGS:
Course readings will be made available via the Ares Course Reserves system (link from CU Learn page or directly at http://libares01.carleton.ca/). In some cases or where last minute changes to readings are made, readings may also be made available in electronic format on CU Learn (https://www.carleton.ca/culearn/). If you find that a required reading is not available for a given week, please notify the instructor immediately. Students are expected to come to class having prepared all of the required readings for a particular week.

Attendance and Participation:
This course is a reading intensive course (approximately 100-120 pages per week) held in seminar format. Active participation in classroom discussions is vital to students' success in the course. Students are expected to attend class on a regular basis and to come to class prepared to discuss the assigned readings. Participation grades will be determined based on: (a) attendance and attention level and (b) active participation that (i) displays knowledge of the subject (ii) contributes to the flow of conversation (iii) shows knowledge of the readings (iv) offers critical analysis of the readings and subject. Questions or comments that display a thoughtful knowledge and analysis of the class readings receive the highest participation marks.

Oral Presentation:
Students are expected to give one 10 minute oral presentation analyzing one of the assigned readings for the week. After their presentation, students will lead a classroom discussion of the reading and should prepare 3-4 questions to pose for the class. We will discuss the dates of the presentations during the first class.

Work in Progress Presentation:
Students will give a 10 minute presentation based on the topic for their Major Written Assignment (see below). The presentation should provide an introduction to some of the major issues or debates in the scholarly literature surrounding their topic and also a sense of how the student will be approaching the topic and how his or her work will make a contribution to the literature. This is an opportunity for students to gain valuable feedback from their peers on their ideas for their major written paper. Students should be prepared to answer questions that emerge in the discussion of their presentation. We will discuss the dates of the presentations during the first class.

Reading Analysis Papers:
The reading analysis papers will analyze all the readings for the week, discussing the authors’ arguments and pinpointing major issues within the selected theme. Papers should not be merely descriptive, but analytical. Papers should critically engage with arguments in the literature and must develop an overall thesis argument. They should elaborate on and illuminate common themes that connect the readings while also attending to methodological, disciplinary differences in how the author approaches the topic. Papers are due on or before the beginning of the class in which the week's readings are discussed. Please note the due dates above by which you must hand your papers.

Major Written Assignment:
The major written assignment may take two forms: 1) Students may write a “traditional” research paper. This can be a paper that focuses in depth on an issue employing close analysis of primary sources and engaging with the secondary literature on the topic. 2) A second variant is to write a critical literature review paper based on secondary sources that engages in a critical discussion of the current scholarship on a particular issue. Further details on the major written assignments will be discussed in class.

Papers will be evaluated according to the following criteria: evidence of engagement with the literature in the field, quality and thoroughness of research, soundness of thesis, use of evidence to support thesis, coherence of argument, logical structure, writing style, grammar and spelling. I encourage students to consult with me while preparing their essays.
Submission of Coursework:
All written assignments must be submitted using the electronic drop box in cuLearn. Unless a specific exception has been arranged, hardcopies of assignments or assignments sent per email will not be accepted. Comments and grades on assignments will be provided in the cuLearn grade book. Unless a medical (or equivalent) excuse is provided, late assignments will be penalized by two (2) percentage points per day (including weekends); assignments more than a week late will receive a mark of 0%.

The preferred citation format is Turabian/Chicago Manual of Style. Please use footnotes or endnotes rather than parenthetical citation.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION:

Considerate Use of Technology:
Laptops, tablets, and phones may only be used in the classroom for course-related activities, i.e. taking/consulting notes, viewing course readings or notes/powerpoint for oral presentations. Other uses (facebook, email, instagram, games, videos, writing grocery lists, doing your taxes, etc.) are distracting to everyone around you (and to you) and will not be tolerated. Students whose use of technology is distracting to other students or is having a negative impact on the classroom environment will be asked to turn off and put away their devices. If you don’t think you will be able to resist other uses, give pen and paper a try. You may be surprised!

Email Communication:
Following university policy, the instructors will communicate by e-mail with students using university “cmail” e-mail addresses. If you have a different account that you check regularly, please set up your Carleton account to forward to that one, so that you do not miss any important course-related announcements. Normally, the instructor expects to reply to e-mail or voicemail queries within 2 days during the working week. The instructor generally does not answer e-mail inquiries or voicemail messages on evenings or weekends. Students who wish to discuss matters with the instructor are encouraged to meet personally during office hours, at another convenient time by appointment, or at the end of class.

Academic Integrity:
Academic integrity is a core value of the university and essential for creating a constructive environment for teaching, learning, and research. Students are responsible for being aware of the University’s Academic Integrity Policy, understanding what constitutes academic dishonesty, and ensuring that all course assignments submitted for evaluation abide by University policy. Any suspected violations of the academic integrity policy will be referred to the Director and then to the appropriate Dean for further investigation. Students who are found to have violated the standards of academic integrity will be subject to sanctions. An overview of the University’s Academic Integrity Policy is available at https://carleton.ca/registrar/academic-integrity/ and the full policy at https://carleton.ca/secretariat/wp-content/uploads/Academic-Integrity-Policy.pdf.

Grading:
• To obtain credit in a course, students must complete all the course requirements for attendance, term work, and examinations.
• Standing in a course is determined by the course instructor subject to the approval of the Faculty Dean. This means that grades submitted by the instructor may be subject to revision. No grades are final until they have been approved by the Dean.
