

Florence Bird Lecture 2018

Policing Black Lives:

On state violence and Black feminist resistance

Robyn Maynard is a Black feminist author, community organizer and public intellectual based in Montréal. She has been a part of movements against racial profiling, police violence, detention and deportation for over a decade and has an extensive background in community work. Robyn will be discussing her recent bestselling book Policing Black Lives: State Violence in Canada from Slavery to the Present (Fernwood 2017).

Wednesday, March 7
2:30-4:30 pm, Room 2017
Dunton Tower,
Carleton University

Free Event, Everyone Welcome

Refreshments to follow

For additional information,
please contact Lana Keon 613-520-6645 or lane.keon@carleton.ca

Sponsored by:

The Pauline Jewett Institute of Women's and Gender Studies, Institute of Criminology and Criminal Justice, Department of English Language and Literature, Department of Geography and Environmental Studies, Department of History, Department of Law and Legal Studies, Institute of Political Economy, Department of Sociology and Anthropology, Joint Chair in Women's Studies

Carleton
UNIVERSITY

carleton.ca