Community Mobilization

Winter 2020
Tuesdays 11:35 – 14:25
Paterson Hall 234

Instructor: Dr. Nadia Abu-Zahra, Joint Chair in Women's Studies

This course will explore healthy and balanced ways of knowing, being and doing, by reflecting on structural inequalities and their consequences for collective engagement, coping, and interpersonal relations. We will engage with struggles against inequality and learn about how collectives are formed, how they organize, and the deep questions that arise in the process. We will also experience and learn about the process of contributing to an organization, network, or group of individuals dedicated to community, social justice, or other similar activities. The goal is to learn in ways that are experience-based, empowering, inclusive, and socially and personally transformative.
