OTHER FACULTY REGULATIONS*DISCLAIMER

Language is fundamental to the human experience, and literature reflects an unlimited potential of human experiences. In our studies of French language and French-language literatures, we are exposed to a diversity of human realities from the past and present. Human realities range from the sublime to the horrendous. For the latter, we need only think of genocide, slavery, racism, sexism and other forms of discrimination, exploitation and persecution, all of which are products of humanity. To hide these would be to present an untrue picture of humanity and human history, which would be anathema to the academic enterprise. In our courses, there is sometimes content and language that are emotionally and intellectually challenging to engage with. You should be aware of this. When this happens (and it shouldn't be the case in our body of works), we take a scholarly approach to the problem and define and contextualize it, together as a community of learning. As a department, we are committed to maintaining a safe space of intellectual growth for all students, and co-discovery with course instructors.

INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY & COURSE SHARING WEBSITES

All slides, presentations, handouts, tests, exams, and other course materials created by the instructor in this course are the intellectual property of the instructor. A student who publicly posts or sells an instructor's work, including video/pictures or audio recording of a class, without the instructor's express consent, may be charged with misconduct under Carleton's Academic Integrity Policy and/or Code of Conduct, and may also face adverse legal consequences for infringement of intellectual property rights.

PLAGIARISM

The University Senate defines plagiarism as “presenting, whether intentionally or not, the ideas, expression of ideas or work of others as one’s own.” This can include:

- Reproducing or paraphrasing portions of someone else's published or unpublished material, regardless of the source, and presenting these as one's own without proper citation or reference to the original source;
- Submitting a take-home examination, essay, laboratory report or other assignment written, in whole or in part, by someone else;
- Using ideas or direct, verbatim quotations, or paraphrased material, concepts, or ideas without appropriate acknowledgment in any academic assignment;
- Using another's data or research findings;
- Failing to acknowledge sources through the use of proper citations when using another's works and / or failing to use quotation marks;
- Handing in "substantially the same piece of work for academic credit more than once without prior written permission of the course instructor in which the submission occurs."

Plagiarism is a serious offence that cannot be resolved directly by the course's instructor. The Associate Dean of the Faculty conducts a rigorous investigation, including an interview with the student, when an instructor suspects a piece of work has been plagiarized. Penalties are not trivial. They can include a final grade of "F" for the course.
