Course description
Whether you see your university years as a period of personal development or as time invested in developing employable skills (or both), your future is already being significantly influenced by global change. You will be better equipped to pursue your own goals if you have some conception of what drives these wide patterns of change – and with what consequences. The purpose of this course is not simply to introduce you to the nature of globalization, but to encourage you to think critically about issues raised by various kinds of heightened connectivity shaping the world today. You will also critically examine your own global connections in order to gain an appreciation of the complex ways in which you already operate as a global actor in your day-to-day activities.

This course is about making connections – between different aspects of human activities next door to us and on the other side of the world; between the changes and challenges emerging in different places and regions; and between conditions in the past, the present and the future. A wide range of issues and questions regarding the dynamics of “globalization” will be covered. Linking people and places, often across vast distances, globalization involves a complex set of cultural, political, and economic interactions embedded within our somewhat volatile relationship with the ‘natural’ environment. By the end of the course, you will have acquired a broad understanding of how differences between specific places and broader regions drive global connections, and how the global shapes – but also is itself shaped by – the local.

Prerequisites
Second-year standing (or permission of the Department).

Attendance
It is mandatory for students registered in Section A to attend both lectures every week. If you have scheduling issues that might prevent you from doing so, please register instead in Section T (that’s the online version of this course).

Course materials
There will not be a required textbook for this course. Instead, all reading materials will be available online free of charge through Ares (Carleton’s electronic reserve system).

1 There are some differences in the course outlines for Section A and Section T. Please make sure to use your Section’s course outline throughout the term.
The syllabus and additional information and materials for the course will be posted on the cuLearn Course Management System. You must access your cuLearn account by going to: http://carleton.ca/culearnsupport/students/getting-started

Please check cuLearn before coming to class. Note that lecture topics and required readings are subject to change at the discretion of the instructor. Changes will be announced on cuLearn.

Course Evaluation

- Pop quizzes (up to ten during the term) 15%
- Term project (due Dec. 8 at 11:59pm) 20%
- Midterm exam (Oct. 19) 30%
- Final exam (date to be announced) 35%

Note that the instructor may adjust course grades to approximate a bell-shaped distribution for the class.

Minimum standards to be in good standing: You will need to write at least three quarters of the pop quizzes offered during the term and receive a grade of D- or higher in the midterm and final exams to be considered in good standing.

Retain copies of work submitted
Students are strongly advised to retain a hard copy (and electronic backup) of all work submitted and be prepared to provide it to the instructor in the event of loss for any reason.

Communication with the instructor
You are encouraged to contact the instructor with questions and concerns about the course, readings, or assignments. As you know, e-mail is excellent for conveying simple information but not a good medium for complex communication. Feel free to send messages to the instructor when you can realistically expect that your question can be answered in one or two sentences. Questions like “what are you looking for on the exam?” are inappropriate for an e-mail format. For this kind of complex information, please email the instructor to schedule an appointment and speak with him in person. It is important to include the course code in the subject line of all emails to the instructor, to prevent messages from being automatically redirected to the instructor's junk email box.

Drop date
Please check the Carleton University Calendar for the last day in the term to withdraw from a course with full fee adjustment.

Deferred examinations and grades
Only official deferrals petitioned through the Office of the Registrar will be honoured. Please see the following webpage: http://carleton.ca/registrar/special-requests/deferral/.

Instructional & Conduct Offences:
Instructional offences include (among other activities): cheating, contravening examination regulations, plagiarism, submitting similar work in two or more courses without prior permission, and disrupting classes. Conduct offences apply in areas of discrimination and sexual harassment. Further information about University regulations which define and regulate these offences is presented in the Undergraduate Calendar: http://calendar.carleton.ca/undergrad/regulations/

Note on Plagiarism:
Plagiarism is the submission of someone else’s writing/ideas/work as your own. All ideas presented which are not your own must be properly referenced. While forms of plagiarism may vary, each involves verbatim or near verbatim presentation of the writings or ideas of others’ as one’s own without adequately acknowledging the original source. Plagiarism includes (but is not limited to): copying from a book, article or another student; downloading material or ideas from the Internet and replicating these verbatim or without citation; or otherwise submitting someone else’s work or ideas as your own.

University regulations stipulate that allegations of plagiarism, cheating or any violations of examination conduct rules will be thoroughly reviewed. If the instructor suspects that a student has submitted plagiarized work, the submitted assignment will be forwarded to the Chair of the Department of Geography and Environmental Studies. If it is agreed that an instructional offence may have been committed, the case will be forwarded to the Associate Dean (Undergraduate Affairs) of the Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences. University procedures do not permit the instructors to discuss the allegations with you. You will receive a request from the Associate Dean’s Office to discuss this matter in person with two Associate Deans. They decide if an instructional offence has occurred, following an interview with the student, and decide what, if any, any penalties are warranted. Thus, you are advised to keep all research notes and printouts from web sites, even after you submit your paper.

The key to avoiding plagiarism is to learn how to do research and how to cite sources properly. The following web site provides advice: http://www.library.carleton.ca/help/avoid-plagiarism

If you feel you need assistance in improving your writing skills, you are encouraged to get in touch with the Writing Tutorial Service (Room 229, Patterson Hall, http://www.carleton.ca/wts/).
