

NEW COURSE!
Winter 2019

College of Humanities
Greek and Roman Studies
Instructor: Dr Timothy Pettipiece

CLCV2906

GREEK AND LATIN SCIENTIFIC AND TECHNICAL TERMINOLOGY

Did you know that Tyrannosaurus Rex means “Tyrant-Lizard King”?
Or that helium means “sun stuff”?

Today’s STEM fields, as well as the medical and legal professions, are filled with specialized technical terms derived from two important ancient languages—Latin and Greek. This course will teach you how to decode, understand, and even create these arcane and often mysterious sounding terms, giving you a key advantage in your chosen field!

This course will be of interest to students in Arts, Social Sciences, Public Affairs, Engineering, and Science, as well as those interested in pursuing medical and legal careers.*