Course Description

This course will develop fluency in reading Latin prose through a reading of selections from Book 1 of Livy’s Ab Urbe Condita. Historical analysis of our author will be supported by a reading of the whole of book 1 in English and secondary readings from the scholarly literature. The subject matter of book 1 of Livy’s history covers the founding of Rome to the establishment of the Republic, and invites discussion about early Rome, the purpose of history, the construction of a Roman national identity under Augustus, the intersection of myth and history in Roman writing, the use of exemplary figures and stories, and foundational myths of rape and murder. Sight translation skills will be practiced through the reading of alternate versions of the stories in a contemporary writer, Ovid.

COPIES OF WRITTEN WORK SUBMITTED
Always retain for yourself a copy of all essays, term papers, written assignments or take-home tests submitted in your courses.

PLAGIARISM
The University Senate defines plagiarism as “presenting, whether intentional or not, the ideas, expression of ideas or work of others as one's own.” This can include:

- reproducing or paraphrasing portions of someone else's published or unpublished material, regardless of the source, and presenting these as one's own without proper citation or reference to the original source;
- submitting a take-home examination, essay, laboratory report or other assignment written, in whole or in part, by someone else;
- using ideas or direct, verbatim quotations, or paraphrased material, concepts, or ideas without appropriate acknowledgment in any academic assignment;
- using another's data or research findings;
- failing to acknowledge sources through the use of proper citations when using another's works and/or failing to use quotation marks;
- handing in "substantially the same piece of work for academic credit more than once without prior written permission of the course instructor in which the submission occurs."

Plagiarism is a serious offence which cannot be resolved directly with the course's instructor. The Associate Deans of the Faculty conduct a rigorous investigation, including an interview with the student, when an instructor suspects a piece of work has been plagiarized. Penalties are not trivial. They range from a mark of zero for the plagiarized work to a final grade of "F" for the course, and even suspension from all studies or expulsion from the University.
