About this Guide

This is a practical guide that most Carleton students can follow to prepare an application for a Post-Graduation Work Permit (PGWP). But watch for the alert icons: you may need a personal consultation with an advisor at the ISSO.

This guide assumes you are making an online application from within Canada and that you have a valid study permit at the time of submission.

It is possible to apply for a PGWP in other circumstances (e.g. from outside of Canada, or with other status in Canada). Contact the ISSO for information about these options, which are not covered in this guide.

Disclaimer Notice

- This guide has been prepared by a Regulated Canadian Immigration Consultant and International Student Advisor. It provides information about the application process only. It is not a substitute for obtaining legal advice from an immigration advisor.

- This guide does not contain official or fully detailed information about the PGWP. For that, readers should refer to the website of Immigration, Refugees and Citizenship Canada (IRCC).

- Following this guide does not guarantee a particular outcome. All determinations about whether to issue a PGWP and about its validity period are made by IRCC.

Part One: Get Ready to Apply

Once your final marks are posted on Carleton Central, you will be able to get the Carleton documents you need to apply for your PGWP. If you answer “yes” to each question below, you are ready to begin the application.

a) Are you eligible for a PGWP?

Applying for the PGWP can be a waste of your time and application fees if you don’t first confirm that you are eligible. Some of the important eligibility criteria are:

• You completed a Carleton degree, diploma or certificate program that is at least 8 months long.
• You studied with full-time status throughout your program, unless it was a summer break period or in only one final term.
• You studied continuously, except perhaps for authorized breaks, such as the summer break or an official Leave of Absence of less than 150 days.

This is not a complete or detailed list of the eligibility criteria. It is important to check all the criteria at the IRCC website, including an explanation of what types of breaks may be “authorized”.

If you are not sure whether you are eligible for a PGWP, or if you have concerns about part-time study or breaks from studying, contact the ISSO.

b) Do you have a valid study permit?

Your study permit is valid if:

• It has not yet expired according to the date printed on it, and
• It has not become invalid because more than 90 days has passed since you received your completion letter from Carleton.

If you don’t have a valid study permit, you may still be able to apply for the PGWP. Contact the ISSO.

c) Do you have a document from Carleton confirming that you are eligible to graduate?

This document is not your diploma given at convocation. It can be one of the following options:
• Email from Carleton following the Senate Convocation Meeting, which usually takes place 1-2 months after the end of your final term, together with a Certificate of Enrolment showing graduation (available from Carleton Central, choose Option #4).

• Registrar’s Letter — This is for undergraduates who wish to apply as soon as possible, before the Senate meets. Important note: you must get a referral note from the ISSO before requesting this letter from the Registrar’s Office.

• Letter from your graduate program administrator or the Faculty of Graduate and Postdoctoral Affairs — Graduate students who wish to apply before the Senate meets may request a letter confirming that they have completed all program requirements for graduation.

d) Is your document from Carleton dated within the past 180 days?

If more than 180 days have passed, you are no longer eligible for a Post-Graduation Work Permit.

e) Do you have a final transcript?

Once your final grades have been posted, you can request a transcript from Carleton Central. The unofficial version is acceptable for an online PGWP application.

f) Do you have a valid passport?

Your PGWP won’t be valid beyond the expiry date on your passport. If your passport is going to expire soon, you may want to get a new passport before you apply for the PGWP. If you choose not to do that, you can apply for the remaining time on your PGWP once you have a new passport. In all other cases, a PGWP cannot be extended.

Other Considerations Before You Apply

a) Do you know the application fees for a PGWP?

Total fees are $255: $155 for a work permit application plus a $100 open work permit fee.

b) Do you know if you have given biometrics within the past 10 years?

If you are not sure, use the Check Status tool. If you haven’t given them before, you will have to give them with your PGWP application. There is an additional $85 fee for biometrics.

After you submit your application you will receive a biometrics instruction letter. Then you can make an appointment to go to a Service Canada collection centre.

c) Do you know what work is authorized while you are transitioning from study permit holder to work permit holder?

If you have a valid study permit and you have been eligible to work off-campus while studying, then these rules apply:
• Until you receive confirmation that you are eligible to graduate — You have your usual school term work privileges, limited to 20 hours per week off-campus.

• Once you receive the confirmation — You have no work privileges, either on- or off-campus.

• Once you submit an application for the PGWP — You can work full-time. The proof of this is your study permit, the Acknowledgement of Receipt from your online application, and IRPR 186(w). If you did not apply while you had a valid study permit, you are not allowed to start working until you receive the work permit.

Unauthorized work can make you ineligible for a PGWP and inadmissible to Canada for a period of six months.

d) Do you know how long your work permit will be valid?

The validity period of the work permit is the amount of time between the issue and expiry dates. These are the guidelines for Post-Graduation Work Permit validity:

• Program length more than 8 months and less than 2 years: PGWP validity period is the same as the program length

• Program length is 2 years or more: PGWP validity period is 3 years.

The immigration officer looks at your Carleton documents to determine your program length.

e) Do you know what work you will be able to do with a PGWP?

A PGWP is an open work permit, which means you may work at most types of jobs, anywhere in Canada. There will be a few restrictions noted on the work permit, especially if you choose not to do a medical exam before applying for the work permit.

If you hope to use your work experience to qualify for permanent residence in Canada, you will probably need to gain work experience in skilled position (NOC 0, A or B level) according to Canada’s National Occupational Classification.

f) Will you be able to extend your PGWP?

It’s not possible to extend a PGWP, unless the initial validity period was shorter due to passport expiry.

g) Can you get a second PGWP if you do a second program of study?

No. You are not eligible for a second PGWP if you have already had one.

h) Do you have a spouse or common-law partner with an open work permit?

Their current work permit is valid until the expiry date, even if you have finished school. They aren’t eligible for a new work until you can provide an employer’s letter and three pay stubs that show you work in a skilled position according to Canada’s National Occupational Classification.
Part Two: On-Line Application

1) Sign in to an IRCC account to begin an application
2) Scroll down your home page to look for “Start an Application → “Apply to Come to Canada”
3) Choose “Visitor visa, study or work permit”
4) Answer the eligibility questionnaire:
   - What would you like to do in Canada? → Work; How long do you want to stay in Canada → Temporarily – more than 6 months
   - See “Answering the Eligibility Questionnaire” below

After you finish the questionnaire, the system will create your document list. Most PGWP applications will consist of these items:
   - IMM 5710 — Application to Change Conditions or Extend your Stay in Canada as a Worker
   - Recent Educational Transcript
   - Completion of Studies Letter
   - Passport
   - Digital Photo

Optional Items

- Schedule 1 – IMM 5257. If you answered “No” to the background questions on IMM 5710, you don’t need this form.

- Client Information – A letter from you and/or any additional documents. You should include additional documents if you need to explain part-time study or breaks from studies.

Important note for graduate students: If the number of courses on your transcript might lead the immigration officer to believe you were not a full-time student, then add historical certificates of enrolment to your application, as they will confirm your full-time status.

If you have questions about what additional documents to include or where to put them in the application, consult the ISSO.

Once you start the application, you have 60 days to finish it. The system automatically saves your work.

Upload your documents in digital format, one document per line. The website www.smallpdf.com can be used to combine multiple PDFs into one document, or to reduce file size.

When all your documents are uploaded, “continue” to sign the application electronically, pay the fees and submit the application.
Once you submit the application, you will immediately receive an Acknowledgement of Receipt. This is an important letter that you should keep in your files.

Working with IMM 5710 (PDF Application Form)

- Download the form from the document list to your computer
- Open the file with Adobe Acrobat Reader
- Fill in the information on your computer (a few tips are found below)
- When it is complete, click “Validate”, then save the document on your computer.
- Upload the form to your application

Tips for completing the form:

- If a field is marked with a “*”, it must be completed. Other areas may be left blank, if the question does not apply to you.
- Page One: UCI – This means Unique Client Identifier. You can find this number on your study permit.
- Page One: I am applying for one or more of the following — Select “Apply for a work permit for the first time or with a new employer”
- Page One: Current country of residence – Canada
  Status: Student
  From: (Date of start of studies) to (expiration date of current study permit)
- Page Two: Mailing address in Canada — This is where you want IRCC to send the new study permit. Residential address — This is where you are living now.
- Page Two: National Identity Document — Not all countries have a National ID. If yours does, provide the information.
- Page Three: Date and place of your original entry to Canada; date and place of your most recent entry to Canada — Dates and locations of entry should match stamps in your passport or your travel records, if you don’t have a stamp.
- Page Three: Document number of your current status document — This number starts with an F and is printed in black ink near the top right of your study permit.
- Page Three: Details of Intended Work in Canada — select “Post-Graduation Work Permit” from the pull-down menu. The rest of the section can be left blank. Details about employer, job title and duties aren’t relevant to an open work permit like the PGWP.
