Academic Accommodations

You may need special arrangements to meet your academic obligations during the term. For an accommodation request the processes are as follows:

Pregnancy obligation: write to me with any requests for academic accommodation during the first two weeks of class, or as soon as possible after the need for accommodation is known to exist. For more details, visit the Equity Services website: http://carleton.ca/equity/

Religious obligation: write to me with any requests for academic accommodation during the first two weeks of class, or as soon as possible after the need for accommodation is known to exist. For more details, visit the Equity Services website: http://carleton.ca/equity/

Academic Accommodations for Students with Disabilities: The Paul Menton Centre for Students with Disabilities (PMC) provides services to students with Learning Disabilities (LD), psychiatric/mental health disabilities, Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD), Autism Spectrum Disorders (ASD), chronic medical conditions, and impairments in mobility, hearing, and vision. If you have a disability requiring academic accommodations in this course, please contact PMC at 613-520-6608 or pmc@carleton.ca for a formal evaluation. If you are already registered with the PMC, contact your PMC coordinator to send me your Letter of Accommodation at the beginning of the term, and no later than two weeks before the first in-class scheduled test or exam requiring accommodation (if applicable). After requesting accommodation from PMC, meet with me to ensure accommodation arrangements are made. Please consult the PMC website for the deadline to request accommodations for the formally-scheduled exam (if applicable) at http://carleton.ca PMC students dates and deadlines/.

You can visit the Equity Services website to view the policies and to obtain more detailed information on academic accommodation at http://carleton.ca/equity/

COURSE DESCRIPTION

While the breadth of Canadian constitutional scholarship is vast, this course examines and contests law’s relationship to the state, society, and the constitution. Through consideration of legal, political, and historical scholarship, documentary films, provincial and federal legislation, case law, and a comic book, students will engage with histories of colonialism, nationalism, and political uncertainty—all of which, at times, overlap and are imbricated within one another. This overlap bolsters critical reflection on the nature of law, the power of state, and the contestability constitutional principles in the Canadian context.

The two overarching themes of the course include: (1) conceptualizing sovereignty; and (2) debating dissent. Through both thematic backdrops, students will interrogate a series contexts related to national security matters, Indigenous self-government, secessionist campaigns, and the collective mobilization and constitutional activism of women, First Nations people, and workers.

COURSE OBJECTIVES (or, ‘what I want you to get out of the course’)

By the end of the course, student should be able to:

1. Explore the implications of competing perspectives of ‘the law’, ‘the state’, and ‘the constitution’;
2. Understand contested concepts including: Nationalism, Rule of Law, Activism, Constitutional Documents, Violence, Reconciliation, Rights, the State, and more;
3. Identify key moments in Canadian constitutional development (e.g. Quebec Secession, the Charter of Rights and Freedoms, evoking war powers in peace times, Sovereignty, and more);
4. Appreciate the development of constitutional rights relative to the actions of particular social and political groups;
5. Explain key theories of ‘political trial’ and evaluate the court how was an agent in resolving or exacerbating legal, social, political, and constitutional disputes;
6. Engage with and critically assess alternative media(s) and forms of expressing the complexity of Canada’s ‘contested constitution’;
7. Develop online research skills (e.g. library, Google Scholar, and LexisNexis);
