CALENDAR COURSE DESCRIPTION

Theory and practice of mediation; historical roots and influences; contrasts with formal litigation and other dispute resolution processes; issues of social and legal control; critiques, including feminist, Marxist and critical race theory; issues of power, gender, race and class; application to contemporary issues and disputes.

COURSE DESCRIPTION

In this course, we will examine the subject of mediation in the context of the law. Mediation is a process that has gained popularity and attention in the last several decades. Mediation, like many forms of alternative dispute resolution, has the potential to transform our views on justice and how our legal system operates. This course will examine the history of conflict and the legal system and the factors that led to the rise of mediation and alternative dispute resolution. The course will also examine the mediation process from a number of different perspectives, looking at important issues such as emotion and justice, culture and diversity and the role of a lawyer in mediation. While this course will present a positive view of mediation and the potential it presents to the Canadian legal system, we will examine the limitation and flaws of mediation.

The course format is seminar style, with a heavy emphasis on class discussions and students' participation based on your readings of the papers and the academic views being discussed. You are expected to participate actively in class discussions. The professor will call on students during the class for their input - whether it be to respond to a question posed, offer critiques on a position put forward or to put forth their own topics for discussion. Students should attend class prepared for each class, as the professor will call students at random to engage in class discussion.

EVALUATION
(All components must be completed in order to get a passing grade)

Standing in a course is determined by the course instructor subject to the approval of the Department and of the Faculty Dean. This means that grades submitted by the instructor may be subject to revision. No grades are final until they have been approved by the Department and the Dean.

1. Attendance and Participation (20%)
2. Course Paper Proposal (10%)
3. Course Paper (30%)
4. Final Examination (40%)

All assignments must be typed or word-processed and submitted in hard copy on the date specified in the syllabus. Assignments will not be accepted by email. Always retain a copy of the submitted work. In the event of loss, theft, destruction, dispute over authorship, or any other eventuality, it will be your responsibility to provide a copy of your work. Keeping earlier drafts of your work and other materials is strongly encouraged.

Attendance & Participation (20%)

Students will be expected to attend every class. In addition to the student’s attendance, the students are expected to read the required readings and discussion pieces in advance of the class. The expectation of students will be that when you attend class, you are prepared to identify and discuss the issues from these pieces. 10% of the grade will be for attendance and 10% of the grade will be for active participation in and out of the class.

As participation is encouraged in this class, a flawless understanding of the text and materials is not required. A student’s uncertainty on the subjects being discussed can itself be used to develop discussion in the class. The privilege to opt out of discussion should only be used in extreme circumstances where the student does not feel comfortable participating in any discussion that week due to extenuating circumstances. Overuse of this privilege will have a negative impact on one’s participation grade.

Attendance will be taken every class. Good attendance, however, is not participation itself. Participation is about a constructive dialogue inside and outside of the classroom. Student’s participation inside the classroom will include answering and asking questions, sharing their own thoughts and critiques on subject matters and relating the course material to their own experiences and lives. Students who do not feel comfortable engaging in participation in the classroom may engage outside of the classroom as well. Students may send me their own questions and critiques that they may not feel comfortable presenting to the class themselves by email. Students may also send additional readings and articles to me so I can distribute amongst the class. Students may also make use of the professor’s office hours to discuss subjects with the professor that can be brought up for future discussion.

The participation grade will be used to assess the quality of the student’s engagement with the classroom. Quantity of discussion does not necessarily mean quality of discussion. A student who responds often to questions but fails to participate in a manner that creates discussion will not be graded as highly as a student who participates less frequently but who consistently constructs a productive dialogue in the classroom.

Some of the topics that will be discussed are considered controversial and members of the class may have strongly held differences of opinion. This is the basis for a very robust discussion in the classroom. All discussion, however, should be respectful of others, of differently held views and of the classroom space. The use of offensive terminology or personal attacks will not be tolerated in the classroom and will result in a reduced participation grade.

Students routinely question near the end of the semester how they can best improve their participation grade. The key is attending every class, asking relevant questions to the discussion at hand, answering probative questions asked by the professor and engaging with the professor outside of the classroom. Participation does not require a student to dominate the in-class discussion. A thoughtful or poignant question posed at the right time during class is as beneficial as a student’s views on a subject matter. Participation is an important skill that students should work on in their academic lives.

Course Paper Proposal (10%) & Course Paper (30%)

Students will be required to submit a Course Paper. The Course Paper will be on the subject of the student’s choosing as it relates to Mediation. Students may write on any of the subjects covered in the readings and lectures OR may research a topic not covered during the lectures. Students are given free rein to discuss any topic that applies to both mediation and legal studies. Students may change their topic after receiving feedback from the course paper proposal.

The Course Paper Proposal will be due February 4th, 2018. The Course Paper proposal will consist of 10% of your final grade. The proposal cannot exceed two pages, double spaced, with a 12-sized Time News Roman font. The student is required to provide, at bare minimum: a) the topic, b) the research question, c) the working thesis of your paper, d) proposed arguments in support of your thesis, e) a proposed bibliography with at least 5 sources that you are planning to use for your paper. These 5 sources should not be sources contained in this syllabus. Students will be expected to sufficiently explain their thesis, arguments and purpose of the paper. Students will be assessed on their understanding of the topic in question, their engagement with the subject matter proposed and their ability to briefly explain their proposed paper to the professor. Students will receive constructive feedback on their proposals to assist them in the writing of their Course Paper.

The Course Paper will be due April 1st, 2018. The Course Paper will consist of 30% of your final grade. The Course Paper cannot exceed fifteen pages, double spaced with a 12-sized Time News Roman font. There is no minimum page requirement for the Course Paper. The Course Paper will be assessed for the student’s: 1) understanding of subject matter, 2) the strength of their argument, 3) the organization and coherence of the essay and it’s arguments, 4) the writing style (spelling, grammar, sentence structure) used in the paper, and 5) the quantity and quality of the bibliography. Students will be expected to have a bibliography exceeding the 5 sources in their course paper proposal.

Final Exam (40%)

This final examination will be a three hour, open book examination with short answer and essay questions. Students will be permitted to bring in copies of their notes, but will not be permitted to bring in copies of the class readings. The final examination will be based on the required texts, in-class lectures and discussion and any further materials distributed throughout the semester. There will be a final exam review class scheduled for the final lecture. The final examination date will be available online and will take place during the formal examination period.
