Academic Accommodations:

You may need special arrangements to meet your academic obligations during the term. For an accommodation request the processes are as follows:

Pregnancy obligation: write to me with any requests for academic accommodation during the first two weeks of class, or as soon as possible after the need for accommodation is known to exist. For more details visit the Equity Services website: <http://carleton.ca/equity/>

Religious obligation: write to me with any requests for academic accommodation during the first two weeks of class, or as soon as possible after the need for accommodation is known to exist. For more details visit the Equity Services website: <http://carleton.ca/equity/>

Academic Accommodations for Students with Disabilities: The Paul Menton Centre for Students with Disabilities (PMC) provides services to students with Learning Disabilities (LD), psychiatric/mental health disabilities, Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD), Autism Spectrum Disorders (ASD), chronic medical conditions, and impairments in mobility, hearing, and vision. If you have a disability requiring academic accommodations in this course, please contact PMC at 613-520-6608 or pmc@carleton.ca for a formal evaluation. If you are already registered with the PMC, contact your PMC coordinator to send me your Letter of Accommodation at the beginning of the term, and no later than two weeks before the first in-class scheduled test or exam requiring accommodation (if applicable). Requests made within two weeks will be reviewed on a case-by-case basis. After requesting accommodation from PMC, meet with me to ensure accommodation arrangements are made. Please consult the PMC website (www.carleton.ca/pmc) for the deadline to request accommodations for the formally-scheduled exam (if applicable).

You can visit the Equity Services website to view the policies and to obtain more detailed information on academic accommodation at <http://carleton.ca/equity/>

Plagiarism

Plagiarism is presenting, whether intentional or not, the ideas, expression of ideas or work of others as one's own. Plagiarism includes reproducing or paraphrasing portions of someone else's published or unpublished material, regardless of the source, and presenting these as one's own without proper citation or reference to the original source. Examples of sources from which the ideas, expressions of ideas or works of others may be drawn from include but are not limited to: books, articles, papers, literary compositions and phrases, performance compositions, chemical compounds, art works, laboratory reports, research results, calculations and the results of calculations, diagrams, constructions, computer reports, computer code/software, and material on the Internet. Plagiarism is a serious offence.

COURSE DESCRIPTION

Selected controversies in rights theories and practices. Illustrative questions may include: Are human rights culturally relative? Can rights be justified after the demise of natural rights philosophy? Do rights undermine "difference"? Do communities benefit from a rights-based culture? Are "rights" forms of governance?.

"Controversies in Rights Theory: The Haitian Revolution and Rights"

The Haitian Revolution broke out on the French colony of Saint Domingue on the night of August 22, 1791, when black slaves rose up and attacked plantations in the colony's richest sugar-growing district. Some thirteen years later, the events set in motion that night culminated on January 1, 1804, with the Haitian Declaration of Independence by a former slave, Jean-Jacques Dessalines. Achieving the overthrow of colonialism, slavery, and racial inequality, the Haitian Revolution reshaped western political thinking at the end of the eighteenth century. Of the three great world revolutions of the period – the American, French, and Haitian – the Haitian case was the most profound. Each was animated by the rhetoric and ideals of liberty and freedom, but only in Haiti were the implications of those ideals pursued unconditionally. However, the Haitian Revolution's relevance for law, rights discourse, and other related fields is far from universally accepted. Indeed, to pose the question is to adopt a minority perspective. This course will therefore critically examine the Haitian Revolution from the vantage point of rights theory, posing questions of human rights historiography and the production of global intellectual history. Our overarching framework will be attentive to the question of how the Haitian Revolution impinges on a critical geography of the Global South. We will draw on a range of primary materials (Haiti's early constitutions, the Declaration of Independence, and other legal-political writings produced by the revolutionaries themselves), film (Gillo Pontecorvo's 1969 feature, Burn!), C.L.R. James' classic account of the revolution, The Black Jacobins, and a range of scholarship generated by the recent boom in Haitian Revolutionary Studies.

Note on readings:

This is a reading-intensive course. The course will be taught by way of discussion-based seminars. Therefore, it is essential that you come to class having read the assigned texts and ready to discuss them.

Readings are classified as either "required" or "further": required readings are mandatory; further readings are suggestions should you wish to explore a topic and deepen your knowledge. The further readings are also suggested starting points for researching your final essay.

REQUIRED TEXTS

1. Course Pack

Available from Octopus Books, 116 Third Avenue, Ottawa, K1S 2K1. Tel: 613-233-2589.

<http://octopusbooks.ca>

2. C.L.R. James, The Black Jacobins [2nd ed. rev. 1963] (Vintage, 1989)

Available at Octopus Books, the University Bookstore, Amazon, and Abe Books among many others. Used copies of The Black Jacobins are usually available on Amazon and/or Abe Books.

SUPPLEMENTARY TEXTS

1. Jeremy Popkin, A Concise History of the Haitian Revolution (Wiley-Blackwell, 2012).

2. Jeremy Popkin, A Short History of the French Revolution (6th Edition, Routledge, 2016).

Reading, or at least skimming, the Popkin texts will be enormously helpful to you as you progress through the course.

3. Gerald Graff and Cathy Birkenstein, They Say/I Say: The Moves that Matter in Academic Writing, (3rd ed. Norton, 2014)

4. Gordon S. Harvey, Writing with Sources: A Guide for Students, 2nd ed. rev. (Hackett, 2008)

The Graff and Birkenstein and Harvey texts will be especially helpful as you research and write your mid-term and final essay.

There are copies of these texts in the University Library. Should you wish to purchase any of these texts try Octopus Books, the University Bookstore, Amazon, or Abe Books. Used copies are usually available on Amazon and/or Abe Books.

EVALUATION

Standing in a course is determined by the course instructor subject to the approval of the Department and of the Faculty Dean. This means that grades submitted by the instructor may be subject to revision. No grades are final until they have been approved by the Department and the Dean.

Attendance & Participation: 10%

Each unauthorized absence will result in you being docked 1%. Missing 10 or more classes will result in an attendance mark of zero.

Participation note: this does not mean dominating class discussion! High-quality seminar participation involves coming to class having carefully read the assigned readings and completed the preparation tasks, ready to discuss your ideas and actively listen to your peers with an open but critical mind.

Group Presentation: 25%

Each group will receive one mark (in each group all presenters will receive the same mark). You must collaborate and work together; learning to work with others is an invaluable skill.

Mid-term paper (1,500 words max): 25%

A 1,500-word critical analysis of Michel-Rolph Trouillot, "An Unthinkable History: the Haitian Revolution as a Non-event," Silencing the Past (Beacon Press, 1995): 70–107.

Due: Friday October 20, 2017; end of week 6

Full submission instructions to follow

 The Trouillot essay is in the study pack and is the required reading for week 4 **

Final essay (3,000 words max): 40%

"The construction of a society without slavery, one of a universal and unqualified human right to freedom, properly stands as Haiti's unique contribution to humanity." Discuss with reference to at least 3 texts or primary documents you have read for this course.

Due: Friday December 8, 2017; end of week 12 (last Friday of the semester)

Full submission instructions to follow
