CALENDAR COURSE DESCRIPTION

Selected issues and problems in the area of criminal law. The topics may vary from year to year depending on demand and interest and are announced in advance of registration.

COURSE DESCRIPTION

In this class, we will rely on Canadian and American research to examine and analyze the factors that have been linked to wrongful conviction cases. We will use this knowledge to study known cases of wrongful conviction within the Canadian justice system to help us consider the implications that a wrongful conviction has for the accused person who is subsequently exonerated. In doing so, we will attempt to answer a variety of questions such as what impact do wrongful conviction cases have on the credibility of the criminal justice system? How do the state and the justice system respond when people complain that they have been wrongfully convicted? What role do police, crown attorneys, judiciary and other justice officials play in wrongful conviction cases? What impact do wrongful convictions have on the lives of the wrongfully convicted and their families? Finally, can anything be done to reduce the frequency with which people are wrongfully convicted by the criminal justice system in the future?

General Objectives

- To identify the various sociological, legal and psychological factors that contribute to wrongful convictions.
- To examine the role played by various justice officials in wrongful conviction cases.
- To try to understand the impact that wrongful conviction cases have on the lives of innocent people as well as their families and the families of the original victim.

- To identify avenues of redress for the wrongfully convicted as well as mechanisms that can be introduced to reduce or prevent wrongful convictions in the future.
- To critically look at and engage with the course material to gain a deeper appreciation of this often overlooked area of the criminal justice system.

REQUIRED TEXTS

All journal articles will be available on CU Learn. Canadian articles are highlighted in red. Readings related to the cases will be available on reserve at the library.

Communication

The primary means of communication for this class will be through cuLearn. However, I am always happy to answer any questions you may have or to discuss the class material further. If you would like to talk to me in person, we can set up an appointment to meet. If you would like to communicate via email, please be sure to use your Carleton email account. I will make every effort to respond to your message within 24 hours

EVALUATION

Standing in a course is determined by the course instructor subject to the approval of the Department and of the Faculty Dean. This means that grades submitted by the instructor may be subject to revision. No grades are final until they have been approved by the Department and the Dean.

(All components must be successfully completed in order to get a passing grade) – this includes the attendance and participation components. If you do not receive a passing grade (50%) on each of the attendance and participation components, you will not receive a passing grade for this course.

A printed copy of all assignments is due at the beginning of class. Do not submit your assignment via email. If you cannot submit your assignment at the beginning of class, you must submit it to the main office in the Department of Law and Legal Studies (4th floor Loeb Building). Any assignments submitted after the beginning of class will be marked as late. All late assignments will be subject to a deduction of 3% per day, including weekends and holidays – no exceptions. Assignments will not be accepted any later than seven days past their due date without prior instructor approval for an official extension.

1. Attendance and Contribution to Discussion – 25%

- This class will focus strongly on discussion. You are expected to come to class prepared to discuss the readings and the course material. Class attendance will only account for 10% of your grade. You need to be prepared to contribute to the class discussions to earn the additional 15%.
- Students are expected to sign in at the beginning of each class. Attendance grades will not be given retroactively.

2. Personal Reflection #1 – 15%

- Due at the beginning of class on February 13.
- In 5-7 pages (double spaced), critically engage with one of the topics discussed in class.
- How has this new knowledge affected what you thought you knew? How has this challenged your assumptions of the workings of the criminal justice system?
- No secondary material is to be used for this assignment. This is a reflection upon what you have learned and how this has shaped your outlooks. You are asked to reflect on what you have learned so far, how your thinking about one of the topics discussed in class has changed since the beginning of class.

3. Personal Reflection #2 – 15%

- Due at the beginning of class on March 27.
- In 3-5 pages (double spaced), discuss how wrongful convictions can be prevented.
- What have you learned that may help us to avoid issues of wrongful conviction in the future? What practices do you think we could implement to prevent wrongful convictions?
- No secondary material is to be used for this assignment. This is a reflection upon what you have learned and how this could be used to prevent miscarriages of justice from happening.

4. Take Home Exam – 45%

- Instructions and information will be provided during our last scheduled class (April 3).
- Responses are due by 4pm on APRIL 27. Anything received after 4pm will be stamped with the next day's day (ie: it will be late).
- Responses are to be submitted via the Department of Law and Legal Studies drop box. Emailed submissions will not be accepted.
