

The Jurisprudence Centre of the Department of Law cordially invites you to a panel discussion with

Dr Brad Roth, Wayne State University Law School

About his recently published book

Sovereign Equality and Moral Disagreement

with co-panelists:

Patrick Macklem

William C. Graham Professor of Law, University of Toronto Faculty of Law

Zoran Oklopčic

Assistant Professor, Department of Law, Carleton University

Dunton Tower, Room 2017, October 14 2011 at 4:30 pm

Praise for Sovereign Equality and Moral Disagreement

"This pioneering work in international legal theory offers a rare combination of sober lawyerly caution and high philosophical aspiration - leavened with plain common sense. Sovereign Equality and Moral Disagreement gives good reason for pause, especially to those of us who have made a mission of pushing the boundaries of international criminal and humanitarian law." — Mark J. Osiel Aliber Family Chair in Law, The University of Iowa College of Law

"In Sovereign Equality and Moral Disagreement, Brad R. Roth offers a unique and profound perspective on the place of the state in international law, politics and morality. His aim is to bring about a fundamental shift, to make clear that sovereignty is central to pluralism in the emerging global order. Not all will agree, but everyone's view will be richer afterward. The book is masterful, provocative, and important." — David D. Caron, President, American Society of International Law; C. William Maxeiner Distinguished Professor of Law, Berkeley Law, University of California

Jurisprudence Centre