Academic Accommodations

You may need special arrangements to meet your academic obligations during the term. For an accommodation request the processes are as follows:

Pregnancy obligation: write to me with any requests for academic accommodation during the first two weeks of class, or as soon as possible after the need for accommodation is known to exist. For more details visit the Equity Services website: <http://carleton.ca/equity/>

Religious obligation: write to me with any requests for academic accommodation during the first two weeks of class, or as soon as possible after the need for accommodation is known to exist. For more details visit the Equity Services website: <http://www2.carleton.ca/equity/>

Academic Accommodations for Students with Disabilities: The Paul Menton Centre for Students with Disabilities (PMC) provides services to students with Learning Disabilities (LD), psychiatric/mental health disabilities, Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD), Autism Spectrum Disorders (ASD), chronic medical conditions, and impairments in mobility, hearing, and vision. If you have a disability requiring academic accommodations in this course, please contact PMC at 613-520-6608 or pmc@carleton.ca for a formal evaluation. If you are already registered with the PMC, contact your PMC coordinator to send me your Letter of Accommodation at the beginning of the term, and no later than two weeks before the first in-class scheduled test or exam requiring accommodation (if applicable). Requests made within two weeks will be reviewed on a case-by-case basis. After requesting accommodation from PMC, meet with me to ensure accommodation arrangements are made. Please consult the PMC website (www.carleton.ca/pmc) for the deadline to request accommodations for the formally-scheduled exam (if applicable).

You can visit the Equity Services website to view the policies and to obtain more detailed information on academic accommodation at <http://carleton.ca/equity/>.

Plagiarism

Plagiarism is presenting, whether intentional or not, the ideas, expression of ideas or work of others as one's own. Plagiarism includes reproducing or paraphrasing portions of someone else's published or unpublished material, regardless of the source, and presenting these as one's own without proper citation or reference to the original source. Examples of sources from which the ideas, expressions of ideas or works of others may be drawn from include but are not limited to: books, articles, papers, literary compositions and phrases, performance compositions, chemical compounds, art works, laboratory reports, research results, calculations and the results of calculations, diagrams, constructions, computer reports, computer code/software, and material on the Internet. Plagiarism is a serious offence.

OFFICIAL COURSE DESCRIPTIONLAWS 4308A – Sentencing

Theories of sentencing, current sentencing laws and practices, perceptions of sentencing. Data on sentencing practice across Canada. Reforms in other jurisdictions. Critical review of the Canadian Sentencing Commission. Multidisciplinary approach using research and theory in law, criminology, social psychology and sociology.

DEFINITION OF SENTENCING

Sentencing is not defined in the Criminal Code of Canada by the Parliament of Canada. The 1987 Report of the Canadian Sentencing Commission (RCSC) chaired by His Honour J. R. Archambault, S.P.C.J. defined "sentencing" as "the judicial determination of a legal sanction to be imposed on a person guilty of an offence". The RCSC stated that "definition implies that sentencing is a different concept from punishment, though obviously most sentences do involve some degree of punishment and coercion." According to the RCSC a "sentence" ... "is something that must be carried out, and therefore, there must be a reasonable level of accountability in the administration of sentences". The RCSC then stated that sentences "... should be what they are said to be".

The RCSC suggested the fundamental purpose of sentencing is to preserve the authority of and to promote respect for the law through the imposition of just sanctions. The RCSC made this suggestion in the context of the overall purpose of criminal law as being the maintenance of a just, peaceful and safe society. Thus the role of sentencing is to enhance the protection of society. This philosophical statement has been adopted with approval by Canadian courts, in particular by the BCCA in R. v. Sweeney (1992). It also formed the foundation for Bill C-41 which came into force in 1996 and declared in the Criminal Code of Canada the “Purpose and Principles of Sentencing” in ss. 718, 718.1 and 718.2 and made a number of specific amendments to sentencing powers and the sentencing process. Subsequently, special provisions regarding aboriginal sentencing were added to the Criminal Code.

In a nutshell, the Criminal Code sets out four basic principles for sentencing:

1. Denunciation
2. Deterrence (specific and general)
3. Rehabilitation
4. Protection of the public

In addition, the Code also includes two further principles:

1. Reparation
2. Responsibility

These principles are shaped by the concept that any sentence must be proportional to the gravity of the offence and the degree of responsibility of the offender. The Code requires consideration of aggravating or mitigating factors, similar sentences for similar crimes and offenders and special consideration for aboriginal offenders. The underlying philosophy is that the sentence should be most severe for the worst offence and the worst offender. These principles have been influenced by utilitarianism, retributive theories and the ideas of Emile Durkheim.

Sentencing is regulated by the Charter of Rights and Freedoms, although the term does not appear in the text. See Sections 7 to 14 and S. 15. Most important are ss. 7 and 12. Sentencing is also impacted by provisions in the Canadian Victims Bill of Rights (S.C. 2015, .c.13, sc.1), although no definition is provided there.

This course will cover the tools of sentencing as set out in the Criminal Code. These tools are:

1. Discharges
2. Fines
3. Probation
4. Restitution
5. Community service
6. Intermittent sentence
7. Recognizance to keep the peace
8. Imprisonment
9. Conditional sentences
10. Sentencing hearing

This course will not cover in any detailed way the principles of sentencing in the Youth Criminal Justice Act as this is a vast complex topic beyond the limited time scope of this course on adult sentencing. Some reference will be made where necessary to the transfer of alleged young offenders to adult courts for sentencing. See Youth Criminal Justice Act on Justice Canada website.

The course will consider the impact of the controversial Harper Conservative Government's Safe Streets and Communities Act, Bill c-10 of 2011 which limited conditional sentences by enacting Section 742.1 of the Criminal Code. These provisions may be amended by the Trudeau Liberal Government and, if it does, will return the sentencing provisions to the more positive theory as enunciated by former Liberal and Progressive Conservative Governments favouring reduced use of incarceration. Alternatives to incarceration will be considered.

GENERAL LEARNING OBJECTIVES

There is no definition of punishment in the Criminal Code. In ordinary language, it is the imposition of a fine, penalty or confinement or the removal or denial of something pleasant or desirable. Beyond this there is little agreement.

Students will learn:-

- why sentencing and the related field of punishment theory is as important in the study of criminal law in a free and democratic society as Charter rights, human rights, criminal law procedure, criminal law substantive charging provisions, police roles, prosecutions, defence duties, evidentiary rules, and accountability for justice ministers, judges, counsel, police and corrections officers.
- to understand the evolution of sentencing theory and the related field of punishment theory and the role that not-for-profit voluntary organizations and research institutions played and continue to play in developments
- how to conduct an ethical analysis of typical sentencing dilemmas and decide what specific actors should do or should have done to meet equitable standards in the context of public opinion, fairness, professional conduct and knowledge, multiculturalism, due process, public and victim safety, as well as rational crime control
- the principles and reasons for sentencing and strategies for enforcing standardization while still allowing acceptable variance upon identification of unfairness and extenuating circumstances
- the mechanisms developed in Canada to ensure that elected politicians (federal, provincial and municipal), citizens, corporations and justice officials understand the rules and comply with them
- the theory behind sentencing principles and processes and how to assess their effectiveness using comparative models and examples from selected democratic jurisdictions (U.S.A., U.K., Ireland, Australia and New Zealand).
- to understand and apply tools of sentencing and the dynamics of sentence hearings.

COURSE FORMAT

- Lectures and in-class discussions, simulations, case studies, group presentations, readings, role playing
- Three hours a week
- In-class registration taken

EVALUATION

Standing in a course is determined by the course instructor subject to the approval of the Department and of the Faculty Dean. This means that grades submitted by the instructor may be subject to revision. No grades are final until they have been approved by the Department and the Dean.

Final exam period is December 10-22, 2017

Mid-term test (2 hours) (closed book)	25% - October 6, 2017
Constructive Book Review	15% - Due November 17, 2017
Group Presentation	20% - During weeks 6-12 (Oct. 3-Dec. 1
Final examination (2 hours) (closed book)	30% - (TBA in examination period December 10-22, 2017)
Class/lecture participation	10% - (in-class registration taken)

Attendance & Class Participation (Total course mark value 10%)

ALL STUDENTS are required to sign the register at every class. Your participation mark is based in part on attendance and in part on active participation in class discussions. Explanation of your absence for medical and compassionate reasons will be considered in adjusting the registration record. Excuses that you did not know there is a sign-in registration will not be accepted. ATTENDING AN IN-CLASS EXAM WILL NOT BE CONSIDERED ATTENDANCE FOR PURPOSES OF THE PARTICIPATION MARK.

Constructive Book Review (Total course mark value 15%)

Students will produce a constructive book review of Andrew Woolford's The Politics of Restorative Justice. The assignment will be a minimum of 5 pages of text double spaced and no longer than 10 pages of text. It must include a title page, table of contents, page numbers and bibliography and your opinion of the validity of the recommendations in the text. Noncompliance with these rules will mean a reduction of marks.

This assignment is due on November 17, 2017. There will be a late penalty of 2 per cent per calendar day thereafter. Constructive book reviews will only be accepted for marking in hard copy format. Electronic copy will be accepted as the receipt date of a paper. However, this version will not be printed off or marked. A hard copy must be submitted. For your own security make sure you retain for yourself a hard copy of your book review.

Group Presentations (Total course mark value 20%)

“In class” presentations will be done by groups of students in the classes after the mid-term test using concepts and specific cases or groups of cases set out in the texts. Presentations will normally be done based on the specific reading topics for the selected week. However, this can be modified to focus on some specific subject. Presentations can also be done on specific organizations that are active in sentencing and penal reform such as the John Howard Society and the Elizabeth Fry Society.

The same mark will be given for all members of a group. Students failing to attend their group presentation must present appropriate documentation for their absence.

There are 7 presentation days. Dates and topics are assigned on a first come basis. If you do not know anybody in the class, I will assign you to a group or help you form one. Teams should be composed of 3-4 members.

Students requiring computerized equipment and other audio visual materials for their presentations should notify the instructor in advance. Each group is required to provide the course instructor with a copy of their Power Point slides and also with an aide memoire of at least one page in length summarizing the presentation at the time of the presentation. The groups are to provide the instructor with an electronic copy of their power points and/or aide memoire and the instructor will post the them to cuLearn. Key content points in presentations will be tested in the final day test. Failure to provide the instructor with the electronic copy of the power points and/or aide memoire means no grade will be entered for the members of the group. Presentations should be at least 20 minutes long. If there are extra presenters in a group, it will need to be longer. Marks are awarded on content (60%), presentation style (20%) and engagement (20%) of the other students in discussions, simulations or game exercises (Jeopardy, Who Wants to Be a Millionaire etc.). A schedule of presentations will be drawn up on a first-come first-served basis. So identify your topic and the members of your group in writing to the instructor as soon as possible. Students are free to handout sample illustrative materials to assist their student colleagues to understand content and processes. Students can use formats, such as panel discussions, news and talk shows, tribunal and court case proceedings, simulations and debates as well as videos from You Tube and Media outlets. The whole time of a group presentation cannot be used up in a game show format activity or activities. Nominal candy rewards to elicit audience participation and the use of stage props and costumes can sometimes enhance class presentations. Respect for participant viewpoints different from your own and use of limited preambles to questions is encouraged.

N.B. I want to reiterate here the Carleton University Academic Integrity Policy with respect to the “Unauthorized Resubmission of Work A student shall not submit substantially the same piece of work for academic credit more than once without prior written permission of the course instructor in which the second submission occurs. Minor modifications and amendments to an essay or paper, such as changes in phraseology, do not constitute a significant and acceptable reworking of an assignment.” This policy applies to all aspects of your work, including the group presentation.
