If I Had a Hammer: Pete Seeger’s Life in Song

The year 2019 marks the 100th anniversary of the birth of one of the most influential and beloved protest song troubadours: Pete Seeger. To celebrate this folk singer and social activist’s legacy, banjo-playing sociologist Stephen Richer is giving lectures in Canada, the United States and Mexico.

Come participate in this musical retrospective on Seeger’s life and times. The lecture is dynamic and interactive, and the audience will be hard-pressed not to sing along.

- Thursday May 23rd, 6-8 p.m.
- Carleton University
- $30.00 (HST included)
- Register: carleton.ca/linr/registration/

Dr. Stephen Richer is a retired Professor Emeritus of Sociology and former Chair of the Sociology and Anthropology Department at Carleton University. For the past several years Dr. Richer has been teaching a series of courses on the history of protest music, with feedback such as:

- “LOVED, LOVED this! I greatly appreciated the presentation of historical context and stories about the music. I loved the music.”
- “Stephen is a great learning leader, knowledgeable, insightful, fun and funny.”

Open to all ages
Offered through Carleton’s Learning in Retirement Program
www.carleton.ca/linr