THE WORLD IN 1945

The designations employed and the presentation of material on this map do not imply the expression of any opinion on the part of the United Nations concerning the legal status of any country, territory, city or any area or of its authorities, or concerning the delimitation of its frontiers or boundaries. The Secretariat of the United Nations has not participated in the preparation of this map and in no way is to be considered as expressing an opinion concerning the principles of any of those matters.

The United Nations has no organization or personnel to make boundary decisions, and it does not accept any responsibility for yet-to-be-agreed boundaries, boundary changes, or their legal aspects, nor for the interpretation or application of any international law.

The United Nations does not participate in the demarcation of boundaries, which are a sovereign responsibility of the parties involved. The present map is intended to provide a general overview of the world in 1945 and should not be taken as authoritative for any specific or current legal status of boundaries.

The United Nations does not carry out surveys, and consequently the designations and boundaries indicated on the map cannot be considered as reflecting any actual survey results. The contents of the map are not intended to be used for any legal purposes.

The map represents the world in 1945, highlighting various territories and states, with specific demarcations and annotations indicating territorial and administrative relationships. The map includes regions such as the United States, Canada, United Kingdom, Australia, France, and other countries, with detailed notes on territories and dependencies.

Note: The map is a representation of the world in 1945 and does not reflect current political boundaries or changes since that time. It is intended for informational purposes and should not be used for legal or cartographic accuracy.