

November 17th, 2015

exceptional/ exceptionable space

– an interdisciplinary event organised by the Azrieli School of Architecture & Urbanism in collaboration with the Migration and Diaspora Initiative.

Internationally recognised writer, architect and speaker Keller Easterling (Yale University), will discuss “Extrastatecraft”.

9.30-12.45 in the Media Room of the Discovery Centre (MacOdrum library) at Carleton University.

Open event, all are welcome.
twitter #exspacecarleton

“Massive global systems — meta-infrastructures administered by public and private cohorts, and driven by profound irrationalities — are generating de facto, undeclared forms of polity faster than any even quasi-official forms of governance can legislate them — a wilder mongrel than any storied Leviathan for which there is studied political response”
— Keller Easterling

“What then is Exceptional Space?
A migrant ship afloat outside Thailand?
Turned away, turned to where?”

The coordinating research partners include:
Luisa Ji, Thaly Crespín & Lee Michael Pronko (contact@atelierruderal.com).
Professor Roger Connah, The Azrieli School of Architecture & Urbanism (roger.connah@carleton.ca).
Professor Daniel McNeil, The Department of History & Migration and Diaspora Initiative. (daniel.mcneil@carleton.ca).