I. Description:

Kant's Copernican Revolution in philosophy radically changed the way philosophers conceived of the human subject's relationship to the outside world. It also altered the scope of philosophically responsible metaphysical speculation. It was no longer clear that human beings could reliably deliver knowledge of the divine and the nature of reality. Yet many thinkers after Kant, in particular the German Idealists, did not give up on such metaphysical questions, instead intertwining the subjective development of human consciousness with the objective development of reality. The attempts to describe the processes of subjective consciousness and those of objective reality as inextricably linked gave birth to new philosophical approaches to history, politics, and existence.

At the center of the subject-object divide in the 19th century is the question of human freedom. Can free human activity alter the course of history? To what extent? How does this affect what we can hope for? Are any elements of history determined? How does human freedom relate to the development and structure of reality? Which political and moral goals we can set for ourselves?

In this course, we will first explore two different approaches to human freedom in relation to metaphysics: (1) Hegelian dialectics, and (2) Schelling's metaphysics of freedom and theory of divine personality. Each will bring us to a different view of progress and reconceptualization of the role of individual freedom in history.

From here, we will turn our attention to two different lines of development in 19th century political philosophy. First, we will first explore the early Marx's view of the human being and the abolition of private property, as grounded in a notion of historical materialism influenced by Hegel. We will also examine how Marx's historical materialism influenced Angela Davis' analysis of the role of capitalism in women's oppression and her critique of 'bourgeois feminism.' We will then juxtapose Mills' view of individual liberty in society to Marx's theory of communism.

In our final unit, we will focus on the theme of the freedom of the will in existentialism. Beginning with Schopenhauer's analysis of the will, which was influenced by Schelling, we will ask: can the will find any satisfaction in life or are we destined to a life of suffering under the insatiability of the will's desire? We will then turn to Nietzsche, who was famously critical of Schopenhauer, to explore whether life should be seen as a comedy, in which we can laugh and enjoy living. Would such an approach to life require that we free ourselves of commitments to rationality and to God? We will end the course with a return to the question of the possible reconciliation of the human being with God through Kierkegaard's treatment of the concepts of despair and love in the context of the relation of the free finite being to the infinite.

By the end of the course, you will understand how these different political and existential directions were developed out of metaphysical worldviews that featured analyses of human freedom, the concept of the will, and the relation of the particular human being to the infinite.

II. Preclusions: Additional credit for PHIL 3007

III. Prerequisite(s): 0.5 credit in philosophy and second-year standing in a philosophy program, or permission of the Department.

IV. Learning Outcomes:

- to understand the metaphysics grounding the different approaches to history, politics and existence in 19th century philosophy
- to be able to critically analyse, relate and juxtapose different approaches to metaphysics, politics and existentialism in the 19th century
- to identify the relevance for 20th and 21st century philosophy and contemporary questions

V. Course readings and texts:

VIII. Evaluation

The evaluation for this course includes three papers and two ‘blog posts’/journal entries:

- Paper 1 on Hegel’s dialectic, 1500 words, 25% (due Sept. 28)
- Paper 2 on Political Philosophy, 1500 words, 30% (due Nov. 16)
- Oral interview on Existentialism, 15% (Dec. 8)
- Blog post 1 on Schelling’s concept of freedom applied to an example from your life – 10% (written in class on October 10)
- Blog post 2 on the relation of Angela Davis’ Marxist feminism to a contemporary issue – 10% (written in class on November 2)
- Class participation, including one online post between Oct. 12-16 – 5%

All papers are to be typed in Times New Roman font, size 12, 1.5 line spacing with a title. Please submit your paper as a .doc or .docx file.

Make sure all sources are cited in line with Carleton’s Academic Integrity guidelines, listed here: <https://carleton.ca/registrar/academic-integrity/>.

The blog posts/journal entries are two hand-written, double spaced pages each and are intended to help you engage with the ideas presented in a practical way. They do not require any formal structuring and should be written as if you were posting them as a blog online or as an opinion piece for a newspaper or popular website. The blog posts will be private, only read by me.

Attendance is 10% of your course mark. You are expected to attend every class with the reading done, ready to discuss the material. For the asynchronous lecture on October 12, there will be an online discussion to which everyone is required to contribute at least one post between October 12 and October 16. If you miss no more than two classes in the semester, were prepared and involved in discussions, you will be awarded all 10 marks. For each additional unexcused absence, 2% is subtracted from your attendance grade. If you participate in no discussions, you cannot exceed a 5% participation grade. Please speak to me for accommodation requests regarding participating in discussions.

All essays are to be submitted in the Dropbox online via Brightspace and are due at 11:59 pm on the due date. Late papers will be penalized by 5% per day for a maximum of four days.

You must submit all three papers and two blog posts in order to pass the course.

IX. Department of Philosophy and Carleton University Policies (Fall/Winter 2023-2025):

Assignments:

Please follow your professor's instructions on how assignments will be handled electronically. There will be NO hard copies placed in the essay box this coming year.

Evaluation:

Standing in a course is determined by the course instructor subject to the approval of the Faculty Dean. This means that grades submitted by the instructor may be subject to revision. No grades are final until they have been approved by the Dean.

Deferrals for Term Work:

If students are unable to complete term work because of illness or other circumstances beyond their control, they should contact their course instructor no later than three working days of the due date. Normally, any deferred term work will be completed by the last day of the term. Term work cannot be deferred by the Registrar.

Deferrals for Final Exams:

Students are expected to be available for the duration of a course including the examination period. Occasionally, students encounter circumstances beyond their control where they may not be able to write a final examination or submit a take-home examination. Examples of this would be a serious illness or the death of a family member. If you miss a final examination and/or fail to submit a take-home examination by the due date, you may apply for a deferral no later than three working days after the original due date (as per the University Regulations in Section 4.3 of the Undergraduate Calendar). Visit the Registrar's Office for further information.

Plagiarism:

It is the responsibility of each student to understand the meaning of 'plagiarism' as defined in the Undergraduate or Graduate Calendars, and to avoid both committing plagiarism and aiding or abetting plagiarism by other students. (Section 10.1 of the Undergraduate Calendar Academic Regulations)

Academic Accommodation:

You may need special arrangements to meet your academic obligations during the term:

- Pregnancy or religious obligation: write to your professor with any requests for academic accommodation during the first two weeks of class, or as soon as possible after the need for accommodation is known to exist. For more details visit the EDC website.
- Academic accommodations for students with disabilities: The Paul Menton Centre for Students with Disabilities (PMC) provides services to students with Learning Disabilities (LD), psychiatric/mental health disabilities, Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD), Autism Spectrum Disorders (ASD), chronic medical conditions, and impairments in mobility, hearing, and vision. If you have a disability requiring academic accommodations in this course, please contact PMC at 613-520-6608 or pmc@carleton.ca for a formal evaluation. If you are already registered with the PMC, contact your PMC coordinator to send your Letter of Accommodation at the beginning of the term, and no later than two weeks before the first in-class test or exam requiring accommodation. After requesting accommodation from PMC, meet with your professor to ensure accommodation arrangements are made.

- Survivors of Sexual Violence: As a community, Carleton University is committed to maintaining a positive learning, working and living environment where sexual violence will not be tolerated, and where survivors are supported through academic accommodations as per Carleton's Sexual Violence Policy.
- Accommodation for Student Activities: Carleton University recognizes the substantial benefits, both to the individual student and for the university, that result from a student participating in activities beyond the classroom experience. Reasonable accommodation must be provided to students who compete or perform at the national or international level. Please contact your instructor with any requests for academic accommodation during the first two weeks of class, or as soon as possible after the need for accommodation is known to exist.
